Lower milk prices predicted

By DIETER KRIEG

BLUE BALL - The prices farmers receive for milk are expected to remain "fairly good," but a drop of 60 cents per hundredweight is being predicted for Class 1 milk Dr. James Honan, general manager of Inter-State Milk Producers Cooperative, made that announcement here on Tuesday during the annual meeting of District 6 of IMPCO.

This is likely to take place in spite of the fact that the support price for milk was raised by the government recently, effective October 1 The support price is now $8 26 per hundredweight, compared to $8.13 previously.

Honan noted that the price of milk has been "pretty good" during the past year, and that costs weren't "quite so high." Next year costs may be up a little and prices not quite so good," he continued He also pointed out that the prices of cheese and butter have fallen recently and that a peak for Class 1 milk sales has been reached. Nevertheless, he is optimistic about the kind of prices that will be paid during the next six to 12 months and he is confident that the blend price will remain above $10 per hundredweight.

Turning his attention to the need for promotion and advertising, the cooperative leader said that Class 1 sales could be improved New, revised, deductions from members' milk checks for the purpose of advertising have been proposed but were defeated on an unofficial ballot Honan is hopeful that enough support will have been drummed up when the measure comes up for an official referendum later

Farmers pleased with crops

By DIETER KRIEG

The crop situation throughout southeastern Pennsylvania continues to look very good, causing most farmers to express pleasure in what they've been harvesting so far this season. Reports also indicate that soybeans are coming along well and good yields should be forthcoming in a few weeks.

A few farmers in Lancaster, Berks, and York counties have begun to harvest their corn for grain and all indications are that a better than average crop is forthcoming. In Lancaster County, Director of Extension Services, Max Smith predicts that some individuals will meet and ever surpass the 200 bushels per acre mark.

The only weak spot in the crop outlook as of this date is that some of the later planted corn and soybeans were slowed down a little due to the lack of rain several weeks ago. But even these fields look good, nonetheless.

With mostly plesant weather conditions throughout the month of September, many farmers have their silos filled. Nobody has been heard to complain about the kind of crop they had. The ears as well as the stalk are generally big, producing, on the whole, more tonnage per acre than what has been seen for the last several years.

The hay situation has also improved in spite of frequent rains throughout most of the growing season. But it's the rain which made the good harvest possible in the first place, and although plenty of hay must have gotten wet, everyone contacted by LANCASTER FARMING notes that he was able to get most of his crop in dry. Nevertheless, prices remain relatively high in spite of the apparently abundant crop.

4-H benefited Kevin Rohrer

By JOANNE SPAHR

MANHEIM, Pa. - After 10 fulfilling years in 4-H, Kevin Rohrer's career is coming to an end. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Jay H. Rohrer, Manheim R7, Kevin is 19 years old now, and it is time for him to step aside and make room for younger members to expand and grow. But, when he leaves the organization, Kevin will take much more with him than he leaves behind.

"4-H has benefited me in many ways," the articulate and serious young adult pointed out, "it helped me with my farming, but it has also helped me with my public speaking skills."

As president of the Red Rose Beef and Sheep Club, of which he has been a member since he was nine years old, and treasurer of the Lancaster County 4-H Council, Kevin has many opportunities to work on parliamentary procedure and eloqution skills. While County Council treasurer is a relatively high position in the organization, being president of his club has seemed to require more oratory skills on his part. Compared to a small club where getting and keeping the members' attention is not too difficult, Kevin's club is made up of 117 members this year. So, the need for a commanding speaker is obvious.

Probably the biggest help in developing these skills for Kevin was livestock judging. This is the fourth year, now, that he has been chosen to the judging team, and this year, he was a part of the winning team at Penn State.

"Judging gives you the expertise of choosing the right terms, saying your reasons smoothly, and handling yourself with poise," he explained.

As for other benefits, Kevin feels that judging will be a definite asset in his farming career for the selection of replacements in his breeding stock.

By SALLY BAIR

NEW HOLLAND - Jeff Martin, New Holland R3, showed his Angus-Charolais crossbred steer to the grand championship at the New Holland Community Fair on Thursday.

A steady rain forced the 4-H show indoors at the New Holland Sales Stables, but spirits were high as judging continued on schedule.

Reserve championship went to a Hereford shown by Dale L. Hershey, Ronks R1.

According to Judge Tony Dobrosky, York County agricultural extension agent, he chose the Martin beef for the top spot because it was "long and uniform, and I liked the covering. It seems to be uniform overall." He chose the Hereford for reserve honors because it "more nearly follows the type of the champion." He said he liked the length of rump and called both top animals outstanding.

Showing a champion was not new for Jeff. He's been in the New Holland Community 4-H club for seven years and when he was 12 he showed the grand champion at the Fair. Three years ago he showed the reserve champion. Furthermore, last week he showed the champion mediumweight steer at the Ephrata Fair. He said he had had high hopes for a Simmental-Angus cross he showed at Solanco two weeks ago, cross he showed at Solanco two weeks ago, and he was first in his class but not champion. So this time he didn't have such high hopes.

Martin, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Martin, said he felt "pretty good," but added, "It is a surprise. I worked hard. Sometimes I had to stay home on weekends to work on my animal."

Champion showman for the event was 15-year-old

The brown egg birds you asked for -

Before the development of the Hy Line 717 layer began Hy Line geneticists asked brown egg producers like you all over the world which traits they needed in their layers

High egg production, exceptional livability, efficient feed conversion and high egg quality were most often mentioned and in that order Those traits account for the largest share of brown egg profits

So Hy Line researchers screened 35 unrelated lines they had developed, and put the best of them together in the combination that produced the Hy Line 717 layer

Look at the high points of

You Asked for High Egg Quality.
Hy-Line 717 lays high quality eggs.

Your customers want the best eggs good sized, with a robust brown color, strong shells, and with a minimum of interior faults So Hy-Line researchers tested thousands and thousands of eggs for these traits, all to make sure that your egg customers get what they want

In field tests, this work paid off The Hy-Line brown's eggs averaged 24.6 ounces per dozen at 32 weeks of age At 74 weeks, the eggs averaged 27.5 ounces per dozen, just right for your cartons and your customers

You asked for high egg quality because your customers ask for it Hy Line browns produce high quality eggs

You Asked for High Egg Production.
Hy-Line 717 layers are bred to lay 260-270 eggs per bird!

Egg numbers first on your list, and so, first on the Hy-Line researchers' list too. Field tests indicate the new Hy Line brown has the genetic ability to produce 260-270 eggs under good conditions between the ages of 20 and 74 weeks. Those same conditions have produced two-week peak production rates of 85-90%.

You asked for high egg production The Hy-Line 717 is bred for it

You Asked for Exceptional Livability.
Hy-Line 717 birds are bred to live exceptionally well.

In field testing poultrymen have housed 96 to 98% of their pullets at 20 weeks And after 12 months of production, 92-96% of the birds housed were still on the job, producing eggs.

You asked for exceptional livability. The Hy-Line brown is bred to meet that need

You Asked for Efficient Feed Conversion.
Hy-Line 717 layers averaged 2.7 lbs. feed per pound of eggs.

Of all your production costs, feed is the highest When your layers produce more eggs per ton of feed, your profits increase rapidly. Hy-Line 717 layers averaged about 4.05 lbs. of feed per 24 ounces of eggs 2.7 lbs. of feed per pound of eggs in field tests

You asked for reduced production costs, better feed conversion Hy-Line browns are bred to fill your request.

The white egg bird you NEED!

High peak . tough shells great feed conversion .

Hy-Line Variety W-36 puts 'em together

Egg producers love high peaks, tough shells and great feed conversion But in the past these traits have not been readily available in one chicken

Until now. Here's the new improved white egg layer, Hy-Line variety W 36 She peaks high higher than any previous Hy-Line variety She keeps laying at a livelier rate too And the shells on those eggs are up to Hy-Line standards for toughness even after 12 months of heavy production.

You'll note outstanding feed conversion—more eggs per unit of feed.

And her livability is what you'd expect from a Hy Line brand layer, too—the best We think you'll find W-36 egg weight about ideal for optimum efficiency and profit

Incidentally, W 36 gives unusually dry droppings and has an easy-to care for temperament

Hy Line scientists figure profit, not single traits, are your bag Twenty more eggs don't mean much if those eggs don't have shells on 'em or if they come at the expense of 30 lbs (13 5K) extra feed . or if they're all peewees

The shells on those eggs are typical of Hy Line layers Tough Even after 12 months of heavy production

Hy-Line W 36 layers go easy on feed. Great feed conversion In fact, the first time you measure it, you may not believe how little feed your W-36 layers take to produce a dozen eggs

So Hy-Line researchers patiently developed a bird that puts it all together for you—the Hy-Line variety W-36 layer. They tested it for 6 years in operations like yours They checked the obvious traits—egg production, feed conversion, livability, egg size, and especially, shell strength And they watched the not-so-obvious Haugh Units, droppings condition, and temperament, for example.

So now you have the Hy Line variety W-36 egg layer—a bird Hy Line President H B Wallace considers as the third major genetic breakthrough he has seen in his 35 years of layer breeding

Even so, Hy-Line researchers have begun improvements on the W-36 For example, they're selecting its grandparent lines for smaller body weight—to increase feed efficiency without losing egg size

And, of course, the Hy-Line team is working on the fourth major genetic breakthrough—continuous research to make egg production even more rewarding for you See what Hy-Line profit-centered research has done for you. Put Hy-Line variety W-36 layers to work in your operation W-36—she puts it together!

LIFE on the farm

By DIETER KRIEG

Last Saturday turned out to be one of the nicest days of the year A friend had called earlier to ask if I could help him fill silo

Well can fish swim? Does Jimmy Carter want to be President? Do bees like honey?

You bet I ll help fill silo!

Life on the farm has admittedly taken on a different light during the past 2½ years that I have been away from the everyday chores But nevertheless, silo filling has been a job I've always looked forward to And so starts the most recent episode of my life on the farm

Happy to be aboard a 4020 again for the first time since last Spring, I fired the tractor up and aimed the trailing chopper towards the nearest two rows of corn With the power-take-off shaft engaged, the razor-sharp knives began to spin at 1000 revolutions per minute The tractor thundered at full power, the chopper hummed, and within another few seconds a stream of silage flowed into the wagon

Within 10 minutes the wagon was full, and my friend, Bob Wenger, came speeding across the field with an empty one. After just one load it was all routine again. Familiar work, familiar surroundings, familiar satisfactions I felt right at home.

The scents of diesel fuel, greasy machinery, chopped corn, and naked soil touched my insides. The rumbling of the tractor and chopper was music to my ears The tall corn was a pretty sight and harvesting it was a satisfaction even though I had nothing to do with planting this field

Row after row, load after load, the work continued interrupted only by a flat tire and lunch Eventually there were just two rows left The other side of the field became clearly visible through the stalks

Approaching the end of the field, I continuously adjusted the spout, allowing the silage to pile up evenly at a rate of 1000 pounds per minute

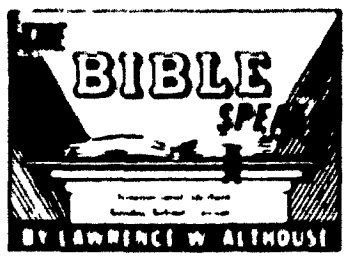
Soon it was time to pull back the throttle, lift the corn head, disengage the p t o and shut down the tractor The wagon was filled to capacity There was no empty one to hitch to

I could see Bob up on the silo (That's him on page 1) Across the fields came the words "I plugged the pipe "

"Must have loaded that last one too full," I thought to myself, as I jogged towards the three tall silos - each one 20 feet in diameter and 60 feet high "Can I help with something?" I hollered up to him "Yes, disconnect the pipe from the blower," he answered

After some banging and prodding, we finally had things cleared But we couldn't put much more silage in because this 20 by 60 was filled to the gooseneck - which is why the pipe had clogged

Those last two rows would have to wait until after milking



THE GUILTY JUDGE

Lesson for October 3 1976

Background Scripture
Romans 1 16 through 2 11

Devotional Reading
Psalms 53

I can see that we're going to have to get rid of the maid, said a suburban wife to her husband, "I just caught her trying to steal those towels you lifted from the hotel in Miami!"

That little slice of life illustrates the double standard under which many of us operate in our daily lives we condemn in others the sins which we easily rationalize away in our own lives The same sin appears differently depending upon your perspective

Judging Another

The author of a recent novel about a great train robbery in nineteenth-century England points out a persistent attitude that prevailed in those days and still is current today: that crime and social evil is performed primarily by a distinct "criminal class" of people. Today we speak of "the criminal-type." It is assumed that crimes are committed by sinful people and that the rest of society — for the most part decent and law-abiding — should be protected from the "criminal element" by isolation and harsh punishment.

Criminological studies have demonstrated the fallacy of these assumptions with statistics of "white-collar crime" that is largely undetected and unpunished. The criminal system in our society is designed to detect and apprehend mostly the petty criminal. If a man breaks into your house and steals . fifty dollars, the recompense if he is caught is predictable and substantial. But if that same man juggles the firm's books in order to avoid several million dollars in taxes, retribution is most uncertain.

Yet, although our society focuses upon only one strata of criminality, it pervades the whole society and is an everpresent potential and often reality in each person's life.

Condemning Yourself

This should not come as a surprise to us because this is the view we find in the Bible. All men, not just some, are sinners in the sight of God. There is no person who in some way does not rebel against God. If we do not realize this, it is usually because we fail to see ourselves and others objectively. We see the speck in someone else's eye and completely ignore the log in our own eye.

It is for this reason that the New Testament warns us against sitting in judgement of others. "Judge not," said Jesus, "that you be not judged" (Matthew 7:1). The Apostle Paul expands upon this, saying: "Therefore you have no excuse, O man, whoever you are, when you judge another; for in passing judgement upon him you condemn yourself, because you the judge, are doing the very same things" (Romans 2:1). Just because our sins are hidden and subtle does not make them any less objectionable than those that are obvious. We may hide them from ourselves and others, but we will not be able to deceive God. There is no one more vulnerable to the judgement of God than he who judges his fellow man.

To Invest In Livestock Equipment

Both dairy and beef cattle producers need to have proper equipment to handle and move their cattle We are aware of the great stress and excitement caused in too many cases when animals are forced into trucks without chutes and loading ramps Also, the reduction of injuries to market animals will soon pay for the new equipment We would suggest that producers should have cutting gates with a narrow chute and headgate, this is very important in treating and implanting animals A loading chute will save pounds injuries, and many dollars in the value of a carcass I've heard butchers and packers remark of the loss to the farmer when market animals are bruised or injured Good equipment will pay for itself in a few years

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

In the interest of professional journalism, and with the true spirit of editorial responsibility in mind, I request that you print this letter in your editorial section. No one, since Christ, has been faultless, and there are two sides to every story. In telling only one side of a story or in pointing out only certain things you are not technically lying, but you are suspect ethically and morally.

I am referring to your "series" of editorials and stories attacking Jimmy Carter, of course. While you repeatedly assure us readers you won't support Carter because you've already made up your mind, you have not mentioned reasons telling us why farmers can't support Gerald Ford. As long as you can only "report" items Carter said or allegedly said not favorable to farmers, why don't you remind us of the negative farming positions taken by Ford and the previous administration?

Ford did the following negative things for farmers: (1) impounded funds fo conservation measures (the money was finally released after a court battle initiated by farmers proved the withholding was illegal); (2) placed an embargo on grain, costing American farmers important dollars; (3) continues to cost each and every farmer money, since according to the latest U.S. Department of Agriculture statisitcs, the farmer's share of the food dollar fell 2.4 per cent in August from the previous month and 9.4 per cent from the previous year. This figure is the lowest since December, 1971; (4) continues to permit far too many imports, especially those from countries with much less stringent inspection procedures and requirements.

Why is Dieter Krieg so upset with California labor laws? I don't like them either, but I fail to see how they apply to our family farms. I'm a farmer, and I generally only hire some day labor during busy season. But, a law's a law, and if California passes the legislation, we must abide by the rules. We should all abide by the rules of our great country. Labor unions may contribute to higher prices, but they certainly don't effect my family farm labor situation. And in Pennsylvania, we are a state of family farmers.

Ford is not a farmer. Never was. Earl Butz, secretary of agriculture is not a farmer. The Carter family has been in agriculture a long time. Jimmy does really know something about "dirt farming". Why do our agricultural journalists and "prosperous farm leaders" always tell us not to vote for farmers? Aren't farmers qualified or "smart" enough to serve as our leaders?

Dieter Krieg tells us why we can't support Carter. I've given four factual reasons why we can't support Ford. Who should we support?

Sincerely,
Walter B. Loncosky

October to December period Animals freshening from late June through September will have a greater proportion of their production during the higher price period Cows or heifers bred from mid September to mid November should freshen next summer and the dairymen will benefit from the milk prices at that time In markets on a base plan, the same pattern of freshening builds a beneficial base, which is usually established August through December Dairymen are urged to plan ahead at this time for peak milk production during the period of higher prices

To Prevent Fires

Fire Prevention Week is October 3 to 9th This is a time when all folks should focus on the fire hazards about the premises and try to eliminate them Many of us take chances that may result in a serious fire Last year 11,800 people lost their lives in fires and the property loss was a staggering $4 4 billion dollars. Space does not permit the listing of all the causes of fires, but most of us are acquainted with the common causes in our area Nationally, electrical equipment and wires caused the most fires; smoking, matches, and heating equipment are next in line of causes. To prevent serious fires we urge that Fire Extinguishers be in good condition and all members of the family acquainted on how to operate them. Also, in this area the farm pond is very useful to fight a fire, providing the fire engine can get to within 25 feet of the water. Most fires can be prevented and we urge everyone to eliminate the hazards at this time

To Topdress Alfalfa

Many local growers harvested four cuttings of alfalfa this summer, this means that considerable plant food was removed from the soil In order to have healthy plants for next season, it is suggested that the field be treated this fall with a phosphorus-potash fertilizer; many growers will make this application just after the removal of the last cutting. Nitrogen should not be needed on an established alfalfa stand. If the field cannot be fertilized this fall, then an application next spring will be needed. Alfalfa plants are heavy feeders of both phosphorus and potash and the soil supply needs replaced each year. Alfalfa continues to be our leading forage crop and will give good returns with proper management.

Two win 4-H awards

UNIVERSITY PARK Pa Faylene Yoder 17 of Hamburg R1 and Freda Beaver 18 of Waynesboro R2 who have both compiled outstanding records in 4 H work have been named winners in the 1976 4 H National Awards Program Freda was the state photography contest winner and Faylene was a winner in the state citizenship contest

Both girls will receive an expense-paid trip to National 4 H Congress in Chicago on November 29 to December 2, and will compete for awards at the national level

Eastman Kodak supports the photography project, and Trans-Continental Gas Pipeline Corporation sponsors the citizenship project

Carroll I Howes, associate 4 H youth division leader at Penn State University, who announced the award selection, said the girls were judged on the basis of project work, leadership ability, and participation in county and statewide activities

They were picked from among the 145,000 young adults who annually take part in the Extension Service educational 4-H program

Faylene is the daughter of Mr AND Mrs Daniel Yoder, and is a student at the Clarissa School of Fashion Design She has been a 4-H member for eight years

A member of the Tilden 4-H Community Club, she served as secretary and teen leader and a leader of the Bicentennial Food Club

The state citizenship contest winner completed projects in clothing, wildlife conservation, teen leadership, citizenship, and health

Freda is the daughter of Mr and Mrs Verdeen Beaver, and is a sophomore at Millersville State College majoring in music education She has been a 4-H member for seven years

A member of the Quincy Clovers 4 H club, Lucky Leaf 4 H Community Club, and Guilford 4 H Club, she completed projects in photography, sewing, cooking, health, recreation, crafts, gardening, and entomology

Better quality alfalfa is commanding a price of $75 per ton, with some really top-notch stuff going for around $120. Mixed hay and timothy is also bringing prices of more than $75 or $80 per ton in some cases. Poorer loads are selling for as low as $40 per ton. Compared to prices in mid June, they're up significantly in all categories, especially alfalfa, which could often be had for less than $75 per ton back then.

The price situation reflects the need for hay in other portions of the country where drought has wiped out good feed prospects. It might be interesting to note here that it was recently reported on national television how one group of fortunate farmers - who considered themselves to be abundantly blessed with good crops this year - sent tractor and trailer loads of hay to their "neighbors" in another region where there was a severe shortage of hay.

'Grand Square' part of farm promotion

LANCASTER, Pa - With 35,000-40,000 people showing up for the National Square Dance Convention in California last year, there is no disputing the fact that this form of recreation is popular And, as part of their week-long promotional effort at Park City next month from October 18 - 23, the Lancaster County Farmers' Association has chosen to feature a professional square dancing group, the Grand Squares, as Thursday evening's entertainment

"We're not really professional" says Mrs Paul Andrews 3358 Marietta Avenue, Lancaster, the wife and official secretary of the group's caller.

"We are just a club of people who get together and dance for our own enjoyment," she says. However, to a non-square dancer, the requirements which have to be met before joining the club make the word "professional" seem accurate.

In order to join, a would-be member must take classes from September through April to learn the "language" of the calls. Then, if a person's progress has been satisfactory, he graduates in April, at which time he is eligible to become a member of the Grand Squares.

"Classes are necessary because the language is so intricate," explains Andrews.

The crowds at Park City on October 21 will get a real feel for the language when two squares of accomplished dancers perform from 7 30 - 9 p m Andrews plans to begin with a pattern call, (one that he makes up as he goes), and then to go into a singing call, which is done as the words of a song

A meat cutter by profession, Andrews has been calling for 15 years In his travels with this hobby, he has been to Delaware, New York, Massachusetts, Long Island, Staten Island, and other eastern states He also called at two National conventions At present, he teaches a square dancing class at the Mount Joy Vo-Tech school on Wednesday evenings and is usually busy calling on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday. He teaches a round dance class, also Harold W. Ney, Marietta Rl, who is on the board of directors of the Lancaster County Farmers Association, was responsible for engaging the square dance group. A member of the Grand Squares for several years now, he and his wife explained the allure of this particular hobby.

"I can work a whole day on the farm, come here, and have a lot of energy," Ney explained.

Andrews thinks the nature of the dance, which requires constant attention to follow the calls, keeps a dancer's mind occupied so that he forgets all problems and concentrates on the energy and fun he is involved in.

"It's also good, clean fellowship," adds Andrews.

Square dancing's heritage goes back to the early American farmer-the pioneer. These ancestors took it out West with them and used it as a way of getting rid of excess energy and as a way of having fun. And, today, it comes to us in an updated version with almost any type of music, from the traditional 4-4 beats to pop songs for a background.

For a first hand view of Grand Square, come to the fountain at Park City Shopping Mall on Thursday, October 21.

Members of the Grand Square whoop it up.

this year He also expressed appreciation and hope for continued confidence on the part of members in their cooperative Acknowledging that four District 6 members were cited that evening for 25-year memberships, Honan said that this sort of dedication is important for the growth and well-being of any organization.

Although he hopes that all members will approve of the increased efforts for advertising, he remarked that some may not, and those individuals could request to have their deductions refunded Honan, however, would sooner not see that happen "The investment would be well worth it, especially in improving Class 1 sales," he commented With membership drives a constant part of the overall cooperative program, Honan emphasized that the cooperative represents the farmers' bargaining power and strength More members would therefore be the addition of bargaining power Inter-State at the present time has fewer members, but milk deliveries are way up and the overall stand of the cooperative is very healthy.

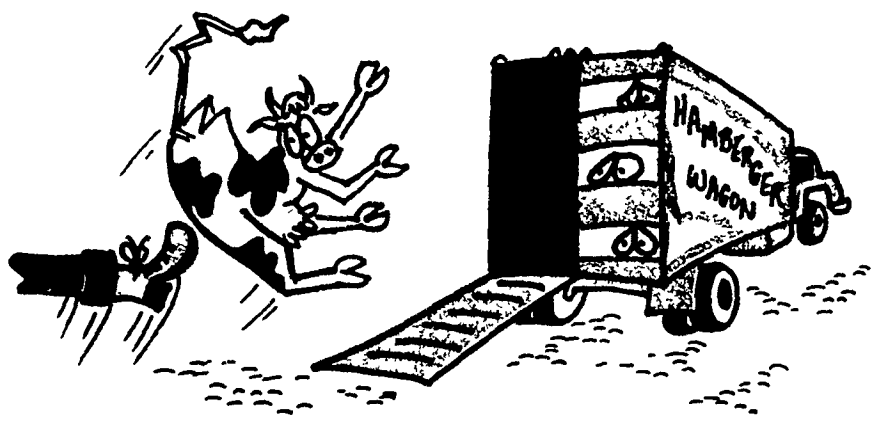
AGRI-KING
KEY TO PROFIT

AGRI—KING'S OBJECTIVE — SHOULD IT BE YOURS?

The fourth in a series of six articles. The first three available on request. Phone 717-394-3047 or 717-626-1164.

One of AGRI-KING'S main objectives is to get the inherited production of your livestock relatively trouble free. Why do we say relatively trouble free? Because this is the only way we can get the production out of the animals that the purebred people have bred into them. There is no way we can get this inherited production if our animals are sick. Recent research has shown that all animal sickness if not caused by poor nutrition was at least agrivated by poor nutrition. Most ketosis, mastitis and udder edema are caused by a protein - energy imbalance. Most breeding problems, milk fever, cleaning problems and sore feet are caused by an improper balance of calcium, phosphorus, vitamins and trace minerals.

The first law of nature is survival, and the second law of nature is reproduction, and reproduction is the number one problem in the dairy industry today. There are more good cows sold because you can't get them bred than any other single reason. Sometimes it can be a mechanical problem but this is rare. It's mostly caused by an imbalanced nutritional program.



These are some of the reasons why only 2.5 lactations per cow is our national average. Consequently our better cows never reach their prime production. This is also why the average herd has 25 to 50 percent first calf heifers and turns over 85 to 90 percent of its cows every three years. These are some averages AGRI-KING would like to help the farmer change for the better.

It doesn't take any more feed to feed a cow through her 4th and 5th lactations than it does through her 1st and 2nd lactations, but there's a lot more net profit feeding good cows through their 4th, 5th and 6th lactation.

There is only one way these problems can be held to a minimum and your cows brought to their peak production. That is to test your roughage and balance your ration according to your tests, the body weight of your cows and their breed. Any other way you cannot get the inherited production relatively trouble free for any length of time.

4-H benefited

His judging experience goes back four years to when he judged at Penn State 4-H days on the junior team. Then, as a senior member, he judged twice. And, now that his team has won in state competition, he is kept busy traveling and judging over much of the eastern and midwestern United States. Just last week, the team returned from Richmond, Va., where they competed with eight other state groups. Other important contests coming up are the Eastern Nationals in Timonium, Md., the Keystone International Livestock Exposition in Harrisburg, and national competition in Louisville, Ky.

"The judging team is also a great experience because you develop a closeness to other people by working beside them for a month and a half," Kevin mentioned.

The month and a half referred to is the time it takes to choose a team for Penn State. During that trial period, senior members give as many as 35 sets of reasons. From the resulting scores, the Penn State team is chosen, and everyone then works and pulls together to be the top place team at states.

So, it is easy to see how friendships are built up in this kind of situation. But, Kevin points out that you don't have to be on a judging team to make close friends in 4-H. Comradship is a natural by-product of being a member of any club.

"In a club, you work together on committees and you help each other out at shows, and you learn to talk to and to get to know other people." he explained.

This is another asset that Kevin would expound on if it were up to him to convince a skeptical person to join 4-H.

"I'd tell anybody who didn't know if they wanted to join a club about how you learn to talk to people," he said. From the common interest that each member naturally has in the club's project, conversations can take off in any direction. Shows are also a great place to get to know other people. Competing against one another and helping each other out with animals establishes relationships.

A member of the Red Rose Beef and Sheep Club since he was nine years old, Kevin has both the beef and sheep projects. Here, he poses with his steer, a Simmental-Hereford cross.

"Oh, sure, the competition does get tight, sometimes, but you still remain friends," Kevin noted when quizzed on the subject of competition in the organization.

To clarify his point, and affirm his position on the subject, Kevin rephrased one of the 4-H mottoes.

"It's important to learn to be a modest winner and a gracious loser," he pointed out.

Continuing his train of thought, he said, "In the beef club, I've gained showing experience, but I'm not mad that I didn't always win."

To add to the list of benefits he has gleaned from his 4-H experience, Kevin pointed out the friends he now has and will continue to have in the future. Another "plus" that can't be ignored is the ability to travel that 4-H gives the active youth. Kevin's latest jaunt to Virginia an example of that.

Given a chance to change one thing in 4-H, what would Kevin choose?

"If I could, I'd probably change the rules so you could be in longer," he states with a grin. But, he good naturedly steps back from that statement right away by pointing out that the time does come when everyone has to break away from the organization to make room for others to experience it.

Now that his last year has come, he has already started on his plans for the future.

Through livestock judging, Kevin became interested in raising swine. He now has a 70 sow farrowing operation.

Eastern National Holstein Show

Holstein laurels go out of state

HARRISBURG - Pinehurst Farms, Sheboygan Falls, Wis , capped off the two-day Eastern National Holstein Show by being named premier exhibitor and premier breeder in this last event of the 13th annual Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show at the Farm Show complex last week.

The grand champion bull, "Zeldenrust Fond Memory," is a repeater ever since the 1973 show. "Memory" is a 3,000 pound behemoth approaching his eleventh birthday, and is from the herd of C. M. Bottema and Son, Indianapolis, Ind. The reserve senior and grand champion bull, a nine-year-old, "C Carlspride Vogel Reflection," was shown by the Hi-Path Farms, Ellsworth, Wis

The senior and grand champion female Holstein, a seven-year-old, "Winchester Marquis Topsy," is owned by the Rountree Farms, Ltd., Brampton, Ontario Reserve senior champion was a three-year-old, "Jeraldine Cinnamon Supreme," from the Maize Valley Farm, Hartville, Ohio

The junior champion female again was from the Pinehurst Farms, this one a senior yearling heifer named "Deppings Royalty Sunset " The reserve junior champion female was "Drendel Elevation Betsy," another senior yearling heifer owned by Rodney Drendel, Hampshire, Ill

The premier sire award went to "Round Oak Rag Apple Elevation," owned by Select Sires, Plain City, Ohio.

Judging the 749 entries in the Eastern National Holstein Show were Glen E. Cook, Elkhart, Ind., and associate judge Jummie N Eustace, Catlett, Va.

This is the first complete Eastern National Holstein Show since 1974. Last year's show was cancelled due to flood waters caused by Hurricane Eloise

Although dairymen from closer to home did not have any champions, a number of them placed within the top five in various classes

Kingstead Farms of Damascus, Md , for example, captured third place in the junior yearling bull class and second place for senior yearling bulls Their entry for aged bulls placed third In addition, the Maryland breeders came up with the fourth place junior heifer calf, third place senior yearling heifer, and second place junior get of sire.

Glenn H. Stoltzfus, Morgantown, Pa., placed first in the junior heifer calf class, followed by Garden Acres Farm of Stoneboro, Pa Another Pennsylvania farm, Singing Brook Holsteins of Imler, took fifth place

In the 2-year old bull class, Super Sire Selectors of Imler and Hermit Hill of Canton took third and fourth places respectively Alla-Valley Holsteins of Allamuchy, N J followed in fifth place.

Penn Springs Holsteins of Elizabethtown and Woodbine Holsteins of Airville each took a third place in the contest which is billed as one of the finest and biggest in the country. Penn Springs of Lancaster County showed "Andfar Astronaut Cinderella" in the 3 and 4 year old dry cow class. Woodbine's entry was "Woodbine Ivanhoe Mollie," an aged cow owned by George M Knight

Scott Bauermaster of Berlin, Pa showed "Gladmaster Elevation Baby," a junior yearling, to third place in its class An entry by Burket Falls Farm of East Freedom, Pa , stood fifth. Another Pennsylvania farm to make the top five was Providence Haven Holsteins, Inc of Carlisle Their "Rowe Spring Rocky Colene" stood fifth in the 2-year old cow class.

"Rinehart Apollo Dawfin," a four-year-old shown by Rinehart Farms of Littlestown, Pa., stood second in her class. The same cow was chosen as the bovine with the third best udder for 4-year olds, and number one milking female over-all. Rinehart Farms also placed first for the best three females class, and second for dairy herd. In addition, the Adams County farm had the winning dam and daughter pair and third place produce of dam.

The dam and daughter class was one category where Eastern breeders pretty much stole the show. Following Rinehart's first place pair was one from Gor-Wood-D Acres of Mansfield, Pa. Killdee Farms of Chesapeake City, Md., placed third, followed by another entry from Rinehart Farms.

In the senior get of sire class it was two New York

keeps shape, freshness, taste, potency. Count on a long period of excellent control.

Potent treatment costs little in comparison with loss of just a few of your trees.

What's one of your trees worth?
What will a bushel of fruit bring?

Figure what your loss would be from just one dead tree . . . root-pruned or girdled and killed by orchard mice (meadow voles).

The figure the application of highly effective Ramik Brown weather-resistant rodenticide.

You'll find Ramik well worth it!

Ramik bait is 26% protein

As food sources diminish after harvest, meadow voles go all out for highly palatable, apple-flavored, mouse-sized Ramik pellets . . . and leave your trees alone. Most other foods simply do not attract rodents as high-protein Ramik does.

The quiet killer

Ramik Brown pellets contain a small amount of the well-known anticoagulant, diphacinone . . . a killing agent used by professional exterminators. Diaphacinone thins out the blood so that the vole bleeds internally, painlessly, and dies.

Because diphacinone is in such low concentration, the vole does not react violently. Ramik does not "signal" its killing ingredient. Chance of bait shyness is much lessened.

Ramik lasts long, does the job

A special patented manufacturing process helps Ramik pellets retain shape, palatability and potency, even under high-moisture conditions. Also chemically treated for mold- and insect-resistance, weather-resistant Ramik keeps fresh over a comparatively long period.

Get ready to bait with Ramik Brown

As it says on the label, apply Ramik pellets after harvest and before snow. Ramik will knock down the hungry vole population. Later, when the snow recedes, a second application can be made to control high density populations or the voles that may have reinfested the vacated tunnels.

Ramik is a pesticide Handle it as you would any other orchard chemical Never allow exposure of bags to non-target species Do not expose bait in small piles, or in a constricted pattern The bait should be scattered evenly over the orchard floor at the rate specified on the label Reseal any unused portion of the bait and store in a closed storage area

Registered for use only in Colorado, Idaho, Michigan, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Utah, Virginia and Washington

At the moment he works for his father in part as a hired man, and for himself as a hog farmer. He has a 70-sow farrowing operation of his own, which he began building last Spring. At that time, he built a farrowing house, and this Spring he added a gestation house.

Kevin developed this interest in swine as a member of the livestock judging team.

"I like working with hogs," he explained. "People say they are the smartest animal on the farm, and I believe them. They do have their own personalities," he added.

His own part of the farming operation also includes three steers, one of which is his 4-H project, and his sheep projects. To add to this, he also has an acre of tobacco.

Some day he hopes to go into partnership with his father, and says he has no intention of using the oratory skills he learned in 4-H to go into politics.

"I always wanted to be a farmer," he notes.

Did 4-H make up his mind in this area?

"No, not really, But, 4-H guided me, and it kept me busy when I might not have had anything to do," he notes. "It was really worthwhile. It was good work," he concludes.

Linda High Lancaster, who has been showing beef animals for seven years She said It takes a lot of practice before the show so the animal will do exactly what you want it to do You must lead it a lot it knows what you re doing and knows what to expect

In commenting on showmanship Dobrosky said he placed Linda over second place Jeff Martin because she was more relaxed and had a smile As a result, she looked like she was enjoying it while being interested in her animal

Dobrosky offered some general advice to showmen, saying 4-H'ers shouldn't forget to use the combs they carry He said animals should be shown as safely as possible, and added, "Don't ever turn your back to a steer - you can lose the animal that way." He said in his opinion, showmen should not change the halter from their left hand to their right hand, but should simply back away and look at the judge as he passes to the front of the animal. Safety, Dobrosky said, is the most important factor.

Kathy Martin, New Holland R3, was grand champion fitter, with Dobrosky characterizing her animal as being pretty uniform and exceptionally clean

Candidates in special series

HERSHEY, Pa. - Political candidates from South Central Pennsylvania will confront one another on a new prime-time series produced by WITF-TV, (Channel 33, Hershey), beginning Friday, October 8, at 9:30 p.m. The four part series of 90-minute programs, called "The Voting Machine," will feature candidates running in state legislative and U.S. Congressional races in WITF's ten-county coverage area.

During the programs, each dealing with a specific population center, candidates from that geographic area will make opening statements and then discuss the issues with political journalist John Baer and a local member of the League of Women Voters.

Scattered throughout the programs will be specially-produced spots" designed to provide basic voter information, including a demonstration of the operation of a voting machine and a tongue-in-cheek cartoon mini-series called "Field Guide for Candidate Watchers," which will identify types of "political birds."

The first "voting Machine" program (on October 8) will feature candidates from the York and Gettysburg areas and will be repeated on Saturday, October 9, at 2:30 p.m. The complete series is scheduled as follows:

PROGRAM 1

$322 paid for lamb

EPHRATA - A record price of $7 per pound was paid by Noah Wenger last week for the champion carcass lamb at the Ephrata Fair. Wenger, who is a candidate for the 99th District State House seat, authorized that the money be donated to a charity of his choice. The previous record price for such a sale was $6 per pound, set in 1974.

The champion lamb, a Dorset, belonged to Barbara Herr of Narvon. Weighing 46 pounds on the rail, it had earlier placed third in on-the-hoof competition.

Steve Strauss' 56-pound Hampshire was the reserve champion of both the live weight and on rail shows. WGSA radio of Ephrata paid $2.50 per pound for the animal.

The on hoof placings follow:

1 Rick Strauss, 2 Steve Strauss, 3 Barbara Herr, 4 Robert Strauss, 5 Elizabeth Herr, 6 Dean Ziegler, 7 Brian Martin.

On rail placings were in this order: 1 Barbara Herr, 2 Steve Strauss, 3 Rick Strauss, 4 Elizabeth Herr, 5 Robert Strauss, 6 Dean Ziegler, 7 Brian Martin.

Pa. hog route restricted

NEW YORK, N.Y. - State and federal hog cholera quarantines on New Jersey swine have been lifted, the U.S. Department of Agriculture has announced. Still in effect, however, are state restrictions on swine shipments into Pennsylvania. Swine owners in New Jersey should contact state animal health officials before shipping hogs into Pennsylvania.

Although quarantines have been lifted, a concentrated surveillance in Gloucester and Cape May counties will be continued. APHIS officials emphasized that testing of blood serums of slaughter hogs will be a major part of the surveillance. A cooperative state-federal hog cholera task force has been in operation since Aug. 2, the day after the disease was confirmed in Cape May county.

Soybeans way up

WASHINGTON, D.C. - U.S. stocks of old crop soybeans are estimated at 244 million bushels as of September 1, USDA reported last week. The figure is up more than a third from a year ago and 49 per cent above the Sept. 1974 level. The only year to top it was 1969 when 327 million bushels were on hand.

On the farm soybean stocks totaled a record high 85 million bushels, up 10 million bushels from the previous high set a year ago. Off the farm stocks, at 159 million bushels, are up 44 per cent from a year earlier.

The big carryover came despite a September 1975-August 1976 disappearance of 1.46 billion bushels that was up 22 per cent from the previous year.

Caught Doodling

In the middle of a geography lesson, Stew was caught doodling on his desk. "Stew," said the teacher, "what do you know about the Rumanian border?" Surprised, Stew could only say "Oh, he's the guy that goes out with my aunt and my father doesn't like it!"

Ayrshire All-American held

HARRISBURG. Entries from Maryland and New York took the banners for grand champion bull and females in the All American Ayrshire Show, last week ath the 13th Annual Pennsylvania All American Dairy Show

The exceptions were Towerview Jeremy, a bull calf named junior champion, exhibited by Towerview Farm, Cochranville, and a two-year-old bull, "Cove Creek Flashy Boy," from the Cove Creek Farms, Bedford, Pa., which earned reserve senior and grand champion honors

The senior and grand champion bull for the second straight year was another two-year-old, "Haynes Farm Don's Robin Hood," exhibited by the Haynes Farm, Tully, N Y Maple Dell Farm, Woodbine, Md exhibited the reserve junior champion bull, Maple Dell Bruis Harvey

Belmont Flashy Bridesmaid, a four-year old exhibited by the Palmyra Farm, Hagerstown, Md., earned the senior and grand champion female banner A seven-year-old cow named "Oak Ridge Bruis Bonnie," exhited by the Pinehurst Farms, Sheboygan Falls, Wisconsin, was named reserve senior and grand champion

A senior yearling heifer, "Chestnut Ridge Classy Danise," from the Chestnut Ridge Farm, Amherst, New Hampshire, was the junior champion female, while a senior yearling calf, "Elmknowl Flashy Cassie," from the Elmknowl Farm, West Kingston, Rhode Island was named reserve junior champion.

Sam Diehl of Cove Creek Farms, Bedford, with his reserve grand champion bull.

The junior champion bull of the Ayrshire All-American belonged to Kennard Henley of Cochranville.

Premier breeder honors went to the LaFranchi Brothers, of the Oak Ridge Stock Farm, Calistoga, Calif., for the second straight year in a row. Ralph Shank, Palymra Farm, Hagerstown, Md. was named premier exhibitor. The premier sire was "Oak Ridge Flashy Klondike," owned by Sire Power.

Although Pennsylvanians had few champions, they put on a strong showing nonetheless.

Pennsylvania breeders were especially strong in the junior heifer calf class, although they failed to win the top spot. But from there on down it was a cleah sweep for Ayrshire breeders. from the Keystone State as Towerview Farm, Toll Gate Ayr Farms, Rose Clubb, and Betty Diehl checked in that order. Cove Creek showed the top junior yearling heifer, while Towerview had the fhird and fourth place animals.

In the senior yearling class, Ardrossan Farms of Villanove placed fourth, while George Knight of Airville took the fifth slot. Towerview placed first in the junior-get-of-sire class, Maulfair Acres of Jonestown placed second, and another Pennsylvania outfit, Cove Creek Farms of Bedford, took third.

Pennsylvania was also strong in the 3 - year old dry cow class, with Cove Creek, William Ocker, and Ardrossan Farms taking the top three spots in that order Keystone State Ayrshires continued to be recognized in the next two classes as Towerview Farm captured first places in the 2 - year old best udder classes.

The judge for the All-American Ayrshire show was Richard E. Keene of Gilbertsville, N.Y.

Conservationists converse

HARRISBURG - The 29th Joint Annual Conference of the Pennsylvania Association of Conservation District Directors, Inc. and the State Conservation Commission will be held October 4-6 in Carlisle with the theme, "Conserve to Assure a Tricentennial."

Hundreds of people concerned with conservation are expected to attend the conference which will include conservation district directors, district staff, agency representatives, local Environmental Advisory Council representatives and guests in a program of speeches, workshops and awards.

Keynote speaker at the October 4 luncheon will be David Unger, executive secretary of the National Association of Conservation District. He is a former executive secretary of the Pennsylvania State Conservation Commission.

Broilers still up

HARRISBURG - Poultry production in the Commonwealth during the week ending September 18 continued the upward trend of the past several months, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service.

Placements of broiler chicks were 1,745,000. The placements were 28 per cent above the same week a year ago, but four per cent below the previous week.

Average placements during the past ten weeks were 19 per cent above a year earlier.

Placements in the 21 key poultry producing states were 63,042,000. This figure represents an increase of two per cent over the previous week and is 12 per cent more than the same week in 1975.

Average placements in the 21 key poultry producing states during the past ten weeks were ten per cent above a year ago.

Rishels win

LINCOLN, Neb. - Angus herds from a five state area competed for top honors at the 1976 Nebraska State Fair Open Show held here recently. Judging the 112 head of breeding cattle was Jerry Fitzgerald, Harrison, Nebraska.

Grand champion bull trophy went to the senior champ, an entry of Bill Rishel, North Platte, Nebraska and Rishel's Edlyn Farm, York, Pa. The winner was Hedgerows New Criterion.

JERSEY - The Cow For Today

Jersey dairymen make more money with less investment than dairymen milking larger breeds. A New York study shows Jersey herds had:

1. 13 percent less labor expense.
2. 14 percent less capital investment.
3. 24 percent less total acres.
4. 23 percent less crop acres.

Jersey milk contains a higher percentage of protein & other solids than milk from other dairy breeds. Jersey's efficently convert forage to high quality human food.

Girls take top swine honors at New Holland

NEW HOLLAND, Pa — Esta Lapp, Kinzers R 1, showed the championship market weight pig at the New Holland Community Fair, Thursday

Reserve champion went to James Martin, New Holland R2, who also showed a cross

Esta said she has been a member of the New Holland Community 4-H Club for five years and has always shown pigs She said, "I like to show I was surprised to have grand champion."

When asked if she was sad about selling her pig, she said, "Now that I won it does" She said it is not difficult to get a pig ready to show "as long as they are tame" She said the pig she showed this year was so tame she could "scratch it under the ear and on the belly The pig really liked it"

She isn't sure how she'll spend the money she gets when she sells her pig, but said, "I'll probably use it for Christmas"

Champion showman was William Hughes, East Earl R1, and champion fitter was Saralee (Sally) Martin, New Holland R 2

Sally is in her seventh year of 4-H, having had pig projects since she became enrolled. She said she likes the pig project "because it brings in money to help later." She said she didn't do too much to prepare for fitting, but washed her pig good with soap and water. It is customary to shave a pig's ears and tails for fitting, but Sally said she tried a hair removal cream this year and it worked really well

Other results of the pig show follow

1 Esta Lapp, Kinzers, 2 James Martin, New Holland, 3 Michael McCauley, Kinzers, 4 Brian McCauley, Kinzers, 5 Jean Martin, New Holland, 6 David Fisher, East Earl, 7 Saralee Martin, 8. Willima Hughes

Tony Dobrosky, York County agricultural agent was the judge for the show.

4-H awards winners named

Rebecca Lee

Phyllis Schray

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa - Two Delaware County young adults who have compiled outstanding records in 4-H work were named state contest winners in the 1976 4-H National Awards program recently

They are Rebecca Lee, 17, of 345 Foulke Lane, Springfield, state nominee for an Edwin T Meredith Scholarship and Phyllis Schray, 18 of 1304 Leedom Road, Havertown, state winner in public speaking

Carroll I Howes, associate 4-H youth division leader at Penn State, who announced the selections, said that Rebecca's 4-H records will be entered in national competition with winners to be announced at National 4-H Congress in Chicago, November 28-December 2 She also will be eligible to attend the Chicago event

USDA will not change Class II price formula

WASHINGTON, D C The U S Department of Agriculture has decided not to adopt advance pricing of milk for Class II manufacturing uses under 34 federal milk marketing orders This issue was considered at a public hearing at Clayton, Mo., June 2-4 A tentative, or recommended, decision against such a change was issued Aug 3

H L Forest, dairy official in USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS), said the decision affirms the findings and conclusions of the earlier recommendations against making this change He said the proposed pricing change would have adversely affected manufacturing milk values, reduced producer returns, and created disorderly marketing conditions, contrary to the intent of the federal milk marketing order law

Forest said federal milk orders set minimum prices that milk dealers, or handlers, must pay to dairy farmers for milk, based on its use Handlers know ahead of time how much they must pay farmers for milk used for drinking (Class I), but not for Class II milk used for manufacturing They do not know the price until the fifth day of the following month The hearing in June considered whether this should be changed None of Pennsylvania's milk orders would have been affected

Using Leftovers

Want to warm up those leftovers? Divide a skillet — electric or regular — with aluminum foil and you can heat several foods at one time Plus you'll do it more economically than in the oven or by heating each separately

Still Involved

No cropland to be set aside for '77

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz has announced there will be no cropland set-aside in 1977. This decision followed the conclusion of a two-day meeting in Washington, D C., on September 17 of the National Advisory Committees on Grains and Cotton.

Secretary Butz said the decision for continued unrestricted production is based on the continuing strong export demand for grain, particularly for livestock feeding, soybeans, and cotton. Under the 1973 farm act, farmers have been given freedom to shift crops without restrictive acreage allotments. The Secretary said that farmers like the freedom for decision-making that exists under current programs.

In view of projected large supplies of wheat in 1977, many wheat farmers are now making hard decisions in regard to better alternatives to planting wheat, the advisory committee members indicated.

On August 23, the U.S. Department of Agriculture announced an accelerated program for new Public Law 480 wheat export agreements for the next fiscal year beginning October 1. Greater emphasis will be placed on wheat in the Commodity Credit Corporation short-term export credit program in the new fiscal year.

In 1977, as in the present year, producers may substitute any non-conserving crop (except marketing quota crops) or any conserving crop (including approved volunteer cover) used for hay or for grazing in order to preserve their wheat, feed grain, or cotton allotments.

Next year will be the fourth consecutive year for the feed grain and wheat programs and the fifth for the upland cotton program in which no set-aside was required. About 40 million acres of cropland have been brought back into production since 1972.

ATTENTION DAIRYMEN

Kick off your fall and winter cow feeding program on the "right foot".

Now is the time to adapt your grain ration to your new roughage program in order to reach your winter milk production goal.

- YOU SHOULD -

* Adjust protein to a proper point, but not an excessive amount because protein ingredients are likely to be expensive.
* Provide enough T.D.N. to enable your fresh cows to peak properly and maintain a high level of production.
* Insure adequate fiber intake to maintain good butterfat output.
* Regulate proper Calcium and Phosphorus intake and ratios in your total ration, including roughages, to aid in keeping your herd healthy while maintaining high levels of milk production.

The above mentioned items are all on our Dairy Nutrition Programming check list. In addition, we use Brown & Rea and Red Rose products fortified with Carnation Lab Mix to insure adequate Vitamin and Trace Mineral fortification in a ration "tailor made" for your herd and available roughage and grain.

If you wish to have an analysis and program recommendation made, please call for an appointment.

Top Guernsey brings

LANCASTER The fifth Pennsylvania - Maryland Guernsey Sale, held here last month at the Guernsey Sales Pavilion, was a spirited and enthusiastic affair, according to John Blyholder, business manager of the Pennsylvania Guernsey Breeders' Association

Thirty three head averaged $1217, with the top animal commanding a price of $3000

A Blair County breeder, John B Morrow purchased the $3000 bovine as well as the second highest price individual The top animal was a bred heifer consigned by Dennis Wolff, Millville Pa Contending bidder was the Kellogg Guernsey Farm of Hickory Corners, Mich The second high individual was a 3-year old consigned by Franchester Farms of West Salem, Ohio She sold for $2700 with Happy Hill Farm of Harrison, Ohio, doing the contending bidding

The third high at $2650 was purchased by Marvin E Miller, Strasburg and consigned by Leader Farm, York The contender on this animal was Ben Crocker, Belmond, Iowa

One bull sold for $1,800 consigned by Kellogg Guernsey Farm, and purchased by Jack Dendel, Allegan, Mich

High buyer in the sale was the Carroll L Ward Family, Astatula, Florida who purchased seven head for a total of $7900

The sale was managed by the Pa. Guernsey Breeders Ass'n., Camp Hill, Pa and the Merryman Company, Sparks, Md.

Farm land to be protected

WASHINGTON, D C - The U S Department of Agriculture has announced a policy to help keep the nation's best farm, range, and forest lands from going into non-agricultural uses

In announcing the policy, Secretary of Agriculture, Earl L Butz, said the loss of prime" lands well-suited to the production of food, forage, and timber is a matter of concern to the nation Major consideration must be given to long-term needs to retain the productive capabilities of environmental values of American agriculture and forestry, he said.

USDA will urge all federal agencies to adopt the policy that federal activities that take prime agricultural land should be carried out only when there are no suitable alternative sites and when the activity meets an overriding public need

USDA also will work with private organizations and groups to urge the protection of prime lands from premature or unnecessary conversion to non-agricultural land use

Land use alternatives are generally available that can minimize the impact on prime lands, the secretary said, and such alternatives should be explored carefully, particularly where federal funds are involved and when prime lands will be irrevocably committed to non-agricultural uses

Other guidelines for protecting prime lands call for (1) environmental impact statements and review procedures, (2) inventories and evaluations of the nation's farms, range, and forest lands, and (3) cooperative efforts with states, local governments, and universities to assure concerns for food, fiber, and wood production are recognized and emphasized n identifying prime agricultural lands

The prime lands policy also proposes review of all USDA programs to insure that they are consistant with the policy

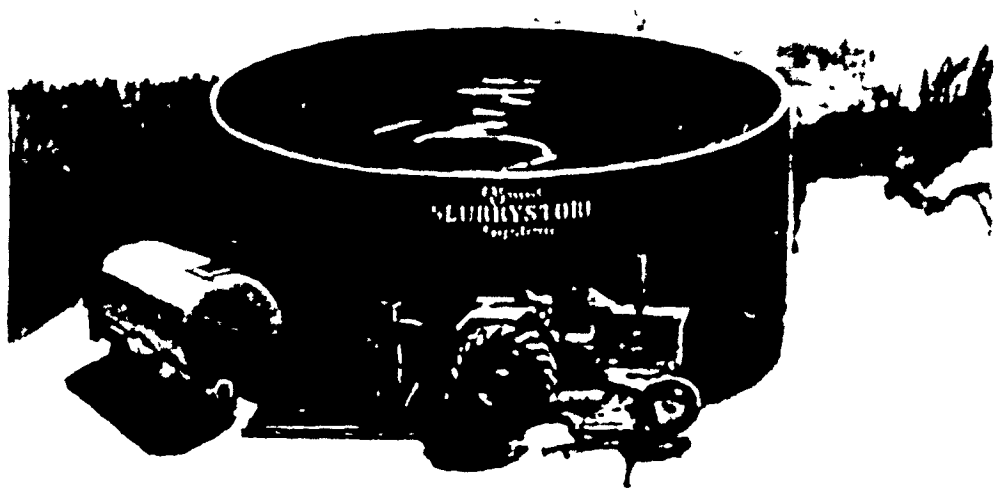
SLURRYSTORE
The proven system that gives you positive containment



glass-fused-to-steel construction:

High quality steel core is shot-blasted to form a clean and highly effective bonding surface

A special formulation is applied to the steel core Then coating and steel are fused together at 1700 degrees

Bonding force between the steel and ceramic coating exceeds 10 000 pounds per square inch consider the facts...

You don't always have time to load and haul manure when plowing planting combining, or when other high priority jobs demand your attention But you also can't afford to wait until you're up to here in manure and see production start to fall off What's more you can't always spread manure in the dead of winter And spring rains (with resulting runoff) can cause a potential pollution problem

Did you ever figure up how much labor goes into your manure handling each year? University of Wisconsin studies show that a 50-cow dairy operation with a conventional manure disposal method required about twice as much labor as the same size operation with a liquid manure handling system

Major problems with daily hauling stacking lagoons or underground storage pits include 1) high investment or labor costs 2) less than-ideal working conditions 3) danger of stream or water table pollution and 4) safety hazards related to both humans and animals Future expansion with the Slurrystore system allows you to meet growing needs more easily it works like this:

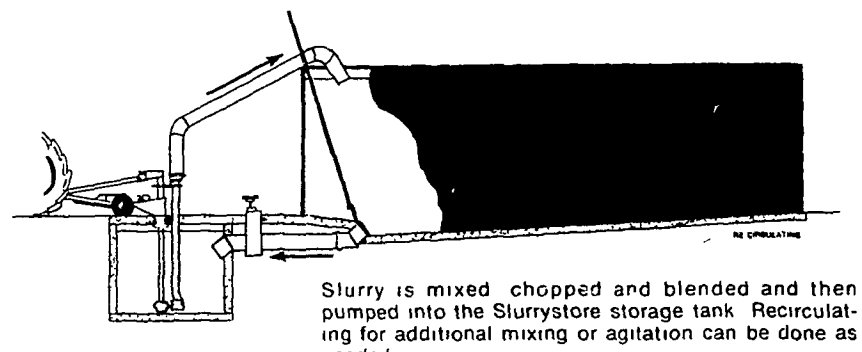
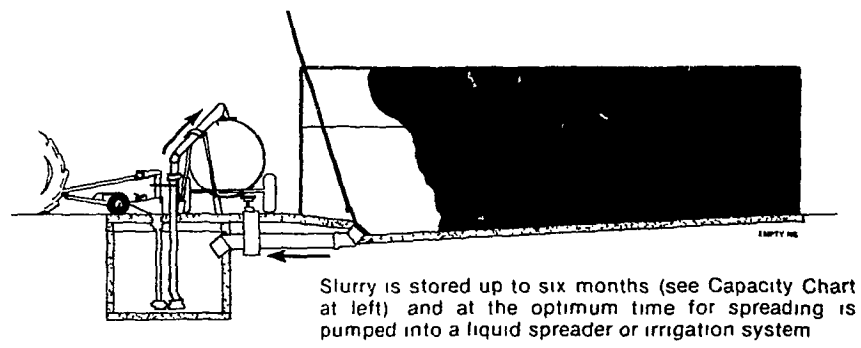
Manure urine and runoff water is drained or scraped to the reception pit which is designed for sufficient capacity to hold an average accumulation of up to three days



Slurry is mixed chopped and blended and then pumped into the Slurrystore storage tank Recirculating for additional mixing or agitation can be done as needed



Slurry is stored up to six months (see Capacity Chart at left) and at the optimum time for spreading is pumped into a liquid spreader or irrigation system

recommended manure storage capacities*

What dehydrated vegetable can be fashioned into dishes, dippers, musical instruments, jewelry, lamps, hats, purses, thimbles, funnels, baskets, slippers, toys, birdhouses, fish net bouys, and dish cloths? The answer is not a new wonder hybrid, but a common plant known to man for at least 9,000 years-the gourd.

If you cannot imagine the gourd as the basis for all these items, then see Ralph Schneider's collection of handmade gourd crafts at 63 Woodland Avenue, York. Schneider, a retired tool engineer, puts his creative talents to work designing and making these numerous objects from gourds he raises on a farm near Hanover, York County. In addition to showing his display items, he can tell any person all he ever wanted to know about gourds. Schneider will quickly rebuke you if you say you can't raise gourds in Pennsylvania by showing you his specimens from this year's harvest.

Six years ago, Schneider became a member of the Gourd Society of America and began to search out more and more history of the gourd and many ways to create art objects from gourds. According to Schneider's research, the earliest known date of gourds in use was B.C. 7,000. Several perfect specimens have been found in a cave in Mexico where the dry, arid conditions allowed the gourds to remain in good condition. Proof of the age was detected by the carbon 14 process and scientists have agreed on these gourds' authenticity and age.

Gourds have also been found in Egyptian tombs, have been mentioned in the Bible at least five times - the most conspicuous reference in connection with Jonah's argument with God over the salvation of the city of Ninevah - were a basis of many Polynesian religious ceremonies, and were used extensively by the American Indians as food and water containers.

Egyptians and Polynesians, alike, used the gourd as a religious ceremonial object. Food was placed in the gourd containers and buried with the dead to supply them with enough to eat until they reached their new world. The Polynesians, not knowing modern scientific information about heredity and genes, had the various types of gourd seeds sown by men whose physical appearance resembled the desired gourd. For instance, the long, thin serpent gourd seed was planted by a tall, thin man and the squat, fat birdhouse gourd was planted by a short, pot-bellied man.

The Polynesians used the fishnet gourd shaped like a set of barbells to bouy their fishnets and as water wings which were harnessed on their small children so they could learn to swim at a very early age, often before they could walk.

The American Indian used gourds as forms for making clay pots. The gourd shells would turn into ashes upon baking, leaving only the hardened pottery. Even though gourds will burn easily, the Indians learned how to use them for cooking containers. The food to be cooked was placed in water inside the gourd container, then hot stones were added to heat the water and cook the food. A cool stone was replaced by another hot stone until the food was cooked.

The Indians also used gourds as birdhouses. They found that gourds which accommodated the Purple Martin were highly useful because the Martins kept the crows away from the grain fields and kept the insect population under control naturally.

The early American settler used the gourd for food and water containers, sewing baskets, thimbles, funnels, and dishes. Another use of the gourd was alluded to in a Tennessee law which stated, "A person cannot sell a dead man's pungent to pay for his funeral expenses." A pungent is a back scratcher made from the long-necked gourd.

Today, some enterprising people are marketing the dishrag gourd's lining as a natural "beauty spong" which promises to remove skin imperfections. Schneider advises people to use this coarse fiber as a pot and pan scrubber rather than as a cosmetic cloth, or use it as he does for the clothes and hair of his gourd craft items.

Perhaps the most popular way to use gourds in modern America is to make decorative objects and commemorative figurines. Schneider has taught gourd craft classes and his basic instruction is to use your imagination. Look at a gourd and see what possibilities it has to become a chicken, a kangaroo, an elephant, a camel, a wiseman, an ostrich, a groundhog, an owl, a penquin, or whatever your imagination devises.

The caveman's club gourd, so named for its appearance, grows with a straight stem when grown on a trellis and develops a curved stem when grown on the ground. It is the basic shape of the kangaroo, chicken, elephant, camel, and ostrich.

The warty hardhead gourd, named for its bumpy sur-

Ralph Schneider poses with two of his creations. Both the chicken and the elephant were made from cave man's club gourds.

The "Spirit of 1776" display contains a militiaman, an old man in a victory march, and a youthful drummer. To come up with these characters, Schneider did extensive research to arrive at the authentic details.

face, can be fashioned into charming owl shaped lamps, turkeys, eagles, alligators, witches, and cats

Another gourd which can be transformed easily into figures such as a snowman or Santa Claus is the birdhouse gourd which supplies a smooth, round form

The dipper gourd can be used in combination with other gourds or by itself. Schneider has devised a ukulele from a large dipper gourd. He used maple wood for the sounding board.

Many of Schneider's creations have the addition of a music box mechanism to play an appropriate tune, such as an angel playing "Silent Night," or movable parts such as a turtle's tail or a groundhog's mouth or a monkey's head moving from side to side. All of these extra touches to the gourd crafts are evidences of Schneider's designing ingenuity and skill. The finished products are convincing in appearance and movement and each is all the more intriguing because it is made almost totally from gourds.

A time-consuming undertaking in Schneider's display was the locomotive he created for a friend who sent him a photograph of a real locomotive. The train is made completely of pieces of gourds glued together to form the right shapes required for the wheels, the cow catcher, the cab and every other detail depicted on the photo.

Schneider did not let the Bicentennial year go by unnoticed. He did a great deal of research on the authentic outfitting of a group of figures he labels "Spirit of 1776." The group consists of a militiaman complete with uniform and weapon, an old man too old to fight, but taking part in a victory march, and a young man showing his desire to be a part of the revolutionary spirit by playing a drum

Accompanying this trio of figures are separate items such as the liberty bell, Ben Franklin, Paul Revere, and a Minuteman All are the result of research and hours of painstakingly piecing bits of gourds together

Characteristic of Schneider's sense of humor, a "Spirit of 1976" display which he created consists of an elephant and a donkey with a marvelous set of gleaming white teeth

Schneider says creating gourd crafts is easy because the materials used are very simple to work with Dry gourds can be obtained by allowing the gourds to mature on the vine past the peak of color and before the frost kills the vine Wash the gourd in a strong detergent solution and dry Store in a dry, airy place After some time, mold will form on the gourd This can be brushed or wiped off to reveal patterns of light and dark coloration

You will also need Elmer's glue to cement the pieces together, and plastic wood to fill in cracks and holes A fruitwood stain to cover the surface and blend in the plastic wood, and paints to color the dish rag gourd fibers for clothing and hair, complete the list of materials A good saw, preferably a power saw because of the hardness of the gourd shells, and a lot of imagination round out all you need for most gourd crafts If you wish to make lamps you can purchase a white fireproofing chemical which coats the inside of the gourd closest to the bulb

Waterproofing for vases or hanging planters can be done by dissolving small pieces of styrofoam, such as the trays grocery items are packaged on, in a lacquer thinner Use only the color of tray you want for your gourd Schneider says as many as 70 trays can be dissolved in one pint of thinner.

Schneider's display and humorously presented knowledge of gourds certainly testifies to the truth to an old legend about gourds - "If you give or receive a gourd . . . with it goes all the best things in life . . . health, happiness and other good things."

Solar Energy

Some consumers are turning to solar energy to heat homes and other facilities In the first six months of 1975, production and sales of medium-temperature solar collectors increased four times over the rate of 1974 The number of companies manufacturing these collectors jumped from 39 in 1974 to 69 in the first half of 1975 The solar heating units absorb the sun's energy and use that energy to heat the air or water within the system

Copernicus

Copernicus, a 15th century mathematician, first concluded that "In the center of all rests the sun" His thesis contradicted the accepted doctorine of more than a thousand years — that the universe centered on the earth

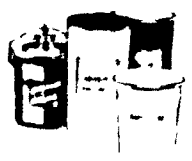
Home on The Range



The recipe exchange that was started recently in this column is working out extremely well The last request published in the paper was for a good yellow potato salad recipe In answer to the request, four recipes - all different - came into the office All four have been published this week

The newest request to come to Lancaster Farming's attention is one made by a hungry husband It reads as follows

"Good morning May I impose on you? I'd love to have a recipe for "slippery" dumplings, as I've had and enjoyed with chicken years ago. I can't locate a recipe to have my wife make them - I've got recipes for the biscuit type of dumplings served in most places with chicken - but the slippery type are more like a thick noodle, and they are chewy and delicious Thank you"

Can any one help him? If you can, send the recipe to "Lancaster Farming Recipe Exchange, Box 266, Lititz, Pa 17543" Please add your complete name and address to insure that you receive your gift of a potholder

1 teaspoon lemon juice
¼ teaspoon cinnamon

Wash, pare, and core apples. Cook with water until tender. Drain and save ½ cup apple syrup. Put cornstarch and salt in sauce pan with apple syrup and cook until clear. Add sugar gradually and cook over medium heat until clear. Add lemon juice and cinnamon. Pour mixture over apples and let stand while making pastry.

Pastry:
2 cups pre-sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
¾ cup vegetable shortening
One-third cup milk

Combine dry ingredients. Cut in shortening until mixture resembles coarse meal. Add milk; mix lightly with fork. Press into two balls and roll one on lightly floured pastry cloth to ⅛ inch thickness, line 9 inch pie plate Roll remaining pastry and make steam vents in top crust Put apples in pastry lined pan Put top crust over filling Trim and flute edges Bake at 425 degrees F for 30 35 minutes

Place strip (two inches wide) of aluminum foil around the edge of pie after it has browned lightly for 12 to 15 minutes

Apple Leather

3 lbs apples (not hard baking apples - use kind for sauce)
¾ cup water
¾ cup sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon, ground

Chop fruit and puree, one cup at a time in a blender No need to peel fruit Apples need the ingredients listed when pureed Line two 15½ x 10½ x 1 jelly roll pans with plastic wrap Secure edges with tape Spread puree evenly over pans (1 recipe makes two leathers) Place in 150 degree F oven to dry Leave oven door ajar approximately four inches Place candy thermometer in back of oven Check periodically to be sure it is correct If necessary turn oven off for awhile to reduce temperature Leather will scorch if high temperature is used Rotate pans every two hours The leather is dry when surface is no longer sticky Drying time is 6 to 12 hours - depending on fruit, oven and humidity

When dry, remove from oven Remove plastic wrap Let cool completely When cool, rewrap in plastic wrap by rolling up like jelly roll

You can store this in the freezer for a year, in the refrigerator for three months and at room temperature for a month

Tasty - great for campers, hikers, hunters, eaters!

IDA'S NOTE-BOOK

We know October has rolled around as we notice a chill in the morning air when we dash to the school bus The sun is just peeping over a nearby hill and a mist rises from the Conestoga and floats toward the meadow The first rays of sunshine filter through the trees and splotches of light move on the roofs of the summer cabins along our lane

Soon the fields will be bare as the corn gradually disappears into the silo and we again join the outside world Most of the summer we've been surrounded by tall corn stalks and the privacy was quite nice But, no one can hide forever

xxx

As I pick the last baskets of sweet corn that I'm sharing with the groundhogs and raccoons, I think of all the other work which I'm not getting done today In my early years of keeping house, I felt it necessary to clean each of the eight rooms in the house each week And, I did it too - even though it meant an ill-tempered mother and wife by the end of the day

With the years, I've relaxed a bit and chosen some new priorities such as a bit of enjoyment for myself Sometimes, I sit down to read or write a letter and clean the bedrooms some other time. Do others find that they change their decision-making in regard to what they "need" and what they "want" out of life as the years go by?

Farm Women Societies

Society 8

Farm Women Society 8 met in the Brethren Church, Florin, on September 25 at 2 p.m. President Grace Bixler presided over the meeting. Thirty members, two visitors, and one child were present.

Do traditional glazing technique on greenware

Some of Barbara's other sgraffito ware which is on display in Taylor Mansion Pottery is shown here.

Visitors are welcome to see her crafts "by chance or by appointment."

Barbara illustrates the proper way to hold a plate while applying a sgraffito design.

By JUDY MITCHELL
Berks Co. Reporter

ROBESONIA - Barbara Breininger lives in a magnificent Victorian house on the outskirts of Robesonia, and her craft is as traditional as her home. Built in 1882 to house the superintendent of an iron ore furnace around which the settlement grew, Taylor Mansion provides a fitting display place for Barbara's Sgraffito ware, a revival folk pottery which reflects the traditional forms and designs familiar to the Pennsylvania Germans.

Barbara and her husband Lester who produces the slip ware displayed in a small gift shop in the Breininger home, work on their crafts in a separate building which originally served as the creamery where the furnace workers came daily for their milk. There, after gathering raw clay from meadows and streambeds the way the old Pennsylvania pottery makers did, the Breiningers fashion the pottery items they then design.

"Sgraffito," Barbara points out, is an Italian word which does not actually name a "craft" but rather a "technique" of decorating which is produced by scratching through a surface layer of glazing to reveal a different colored ground. The effect is a recessed design as opposed to the flat or raised, painted-on design commonly seen on ceramic items.

Although she concentrates on Pennsylvania tradition in practicing her art, Barbara emphasizes that "sgraffito is as versatile as you are." The redware she works on and the designs she creates are essential to the reproduction of the traditional red and yellow Pennsylvania folk pottery, but greenware (unfired pottery) purchased from any ceramic shop may be substituted for the handmade pottery she uses, and her decorating technique can be adapted to any contemporary design.

Equipment

Having selected a suitable redware or greenware container (she recommends a plate for beginners because of ease in handling), you will need a tool for scratching your design. Sgraffito tools may be purchased in most craft shops, but if you do ceramic work, your cleaning tool will do the job.

The engobe (also called underglaze) needed is also available in craft or ceramic shops, and the colors selected will depend on personal preference and on the type of material you choose to work with. Barbara uses a yellow engobe as her primary base with small amounts of green for added highlight when designing her red clay items in the Pennsylvania German tradition. If you are working on greenware from a ceramic shop you can select any two colors you like, or even two shades of one color, but Barbara does recommend that medium to dark colors be used on greenware, which will turn white after firing. (A note for anyone not familiar with working with ceramics, the color of the raw greenware you buy and the glaze as it appears when

Glencoe® MODEL SS "SOIL SAVER"

A NEW TWIST TO TILLAGE! A totally new and different approach to soil management! The Glencoe "SOIL SAVER" creates a non-compacted, "ridged" field that just naturally protects against erosion by wind and water! Instead of simply turning over the soil and leaving it bared to the elements, the "SOIL SAVER" opens up the land down deep to catch and hold available moisture. — Controls runoff, holds and stores rainwater for thirsty crops — soil surface is left open and blended with crop residues that protect precious topsoil! Cutting "slicers" cut up heavy stalks, leaves and root crowns and leave the soil ready to be turned under by the helical blades following. Designed so you can work your stubble immediately after harvest, generally without chopping or shredding.

Glazing technique

you apply it will be changed by the firing process mentioned under "procedure")

Other materials needed are a clear glaze, a pencil, a common household sponge, and a design

Design

Like color, your sgraffito design is also a matter of personal preference. Although books of design are available at most craft stores, you may copy yours from any source, or even create your own. If you select a design from a book or magazine, and the size of the design is in proportion to your container, you need not worry about drawing ability as the design can be traced directly on your plate.

Procedure

Barbara has included the procedure for making pottery for those adventurous craftspersons who desire to do so, although it may take some investigation to find a source for the clay.

The best places to seek clay are in meadows, along streambeds, or a site where a roadbed is being constructed. Finding the clay involves scratching a couple of inches below the surface soil, keeping an eye out for colored veins. The veins may be yellow or blue, Barbara advises, but all Pennsylvania clay will fire red.

Having gathered your clay, clean it by removing any stones or sticks. Place the clean clay on a cloth covered table and roll it about a quarter of an inch thick with a rolling pin as you would pie crust. Having selected a container the shape of which you wish to copy, turn it upsidedown on the table and drape your clay over it, pressing with your palms and fingers until it takes the shape of the container. Be sure to smooth the edges around the outside rim of the container you are making, and then let it sit until it holds it shape and can be removed and handled for the application of the engobe.

If you purchased your greenware, the application of the engobe is the first step in sgraffito design. Directions for applying it will be provided on the label and will usually call for three applications.

After you have applied the engobe according to label directions, immediately sketch or trace your design with a pencil directly on your plate. Don't worry about mistakes at this stage, as the pencil markings will be erased in the firing process.

When your sketch is complete, take the container in one hand, and holding it in a comfortable position, begin scratching your design. With your sgraffito tool, follow your pencil lines scratching away the underglaze until you see the original color of the container. When the design is complete, you can dab on touches of your second color or tone of engobe with a sponge, adding highlights according to your liking; then set aside to dry. Although drying time may vary with the weather, expect it to take a few days.

When the engobe is completely dry, add the clear glaze. Your plate is now ready for firing. A special kiln is required for the firing process, but most ceramic shops will do the firing for a small fee, particularly if you have purchased your greenware there.

Although Barbara recommends that beginners start with a plate, Sgraffito is adaptable to clay or ceramic items of varying shapes and sizes. After mastering the technique, you might go on, as Barbara has, to decorate flower pots, pitchers, cookie jars, and eggs.

Barbara holds a finished plate. A plate is recommended for beginners because of ease in handling.

Ethical Question

The debating team was discussing ethics and it was Palmer's turn to express his views. "I'll give you my view, gentlemen, with an example," he began. "Let's say a man came into my store to buy something, and after he left I discovered that he gave me a ten dollar bill instead of a five. Now, the ethical question is: Should I tell my partner?"

Pennsylvanian first in national beef cook-off

DENVER Colo Mrs Alexander Desantis Bethlehem Pa has been named first place winner of the 1976 National Beef Cook Off a cooking contest sponsored by the American National CowBelles to expand consumers awareness of the less familiar less expensive cuts of beef Chuck round rump and brisket cuts were featured in the contest held in Salt Lake City last week

The CowBelles women's auxiliary of the American National Cattlemen's Association, hosted contestants from 31 states

Mrs Desantis said Fiesta Beef Torta Ole, her winning recipe, 'has the appearance of a round layer cake that is cut in wedges and served with hot taco sauce" It utilizes ground round, refried beans, and cheese layered with corn meal yeast dough Mrs Desantis says cooking, of course, is her hobby

Winning second place was Dr. Sam Tornik, a chiropractor from Plain City, Ohio His recipe, "ZuBeefi," is an interesting combination of ground beef round, zucchini, and cheese. Placing third was Mrs. Clarence Bowman, Lawton, Okla., with "Italian Round Steak Rolls." Mrs. Bowman,who was born in Italy, specializes in adding an Italian flavor to beef dishes.

Honorable mention awards were presented to Mrs Reginald Ivay Wetumpka Ala Mr Frank F Gladden In dianapolis Ind Mrs Roland Morin Sanford Maine Mr Joseph Van Hee Troy Mich and Mr Betts Noel Spokane Wash

Winner prize were $1 000 first place $500 second place and $250 third place

A brochure of all contestants recipes may be obtained by sending a stamped self-addressed, business size envelope to Mrs Dottie Curtis, American National CowBelles, 1001 Lincoln St, Denver, Colo 80201

Fiesta Beef Torta Ole

Beef Filling

2-½ pounds ground beef round
1 package taco seasoning mix
1 cup water
1 can (16 ounces) refried beans
4 ounces Monterey Jack cheese, grated

Dough

3-¼ to 3-¾ cups unbleached flour
¾ cup yellow cornmeal
¼ cup brown sugar, packed
2 teaspoons garlic salt
1 teaspoon taco seasoning mix
2 packages (1 tablespoon each) active dry yeast
¾ cup milk
One third cup water
¼ cup stick margarine
2 eggs beaten

Coating Topping Garnish

2 tablespoons cornmeal
2 tablespoons reserved beaten egg
1 to 1½ tablespoons pine nuts
1 jar (8 ounces) taco sauce

Hot or mild is preferred
Shredded lettuce
Cherry tomatoes
Ripe olives

Prepare dough as follows In a large bowl or electric mixer, mix 2¼ cup flour, cornmeal, brown sugar garlic salt one teaspoon taco seasoning and dry yeast In saucepan, combine milk water and margarine heat over low heat until mixture is very warm (120 degrees F to 130 degrees F), margarine does not need to be melted Add mixture gradually to dry ingredients and beat two minutes at medium speed, scraping bowl occasionally Add eggs and one-third cup flour, beat at high speed two minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a stiff dough Turn out on a lightly floured board; knead until smooth and elastic, five to eight minutes.

While dough rises, prepare Beef Filling as follows: brown ground beef slowly in frying-pan until red color disappears; drain, if necessary, add remaining taco seasoning and water and simmer, stirring occasionally for 15 minutes. Stir in beans and cheese; blend well.

Grease a 9-inch springform pan generously. Fold a 30x6-inch piece of heavy foil in half lengthwise fasten foil around top of pan to form a collar extending about 2 inches above rim of pan as for a soufflé grease inside of foil also Dust bottom and sides of pan with cornmeal discard excess Punch down dough divide into three pieces Pat or roll each piece of dough to a round about nine inches Fit first round into prepared pan and press at edge to form a slight rim Spoon in half of the beef filling spreading evenly almost to edge of pan Top with a second round of dough then remaining beef filling Place third round of dough on top cover and let rise in a warm place until light 25 to 35 minutes Preheat oven to moderate temperature (350 degrees F) Score top of torta with a sharp knife into eight pie shaped wedges Brush with reserved egg and sprinkle with pine nuts, if desired Bake 40 minutes, or until a deep golden brown When almost ready to serve, heat taco sauce in small saucepan Place a square of foil around the bottom outside and about ½ inch up the outside of the pan this avoids a messy oven in case of an occasional ring seal leak

To serve Remove foil and springform rim from torta place torta on a large platter or plate Surround with a ring of shredded lettuce garnished with cherry tomatoes and ripe olives Place the heated taco sauce in a gravy boat to spoon over torta after it is cut and served Cut in wedges as indicated Makes eight servings

Pa. hog team first

RICHMOND, Va. - Pennsylvania's 4-H hog judging team scored a first place last Saturday at the 1976 Eastern U 's. 4-H Livestock Judging Contest held here. Scoring 563 points, they beat second-place Indiana by four, and third place Maryland by five. Kevin Rohrer was third high individual in swine judging.

In the beef judging contest, the Pennsylvania team placed third behind Maryland and Kentucky. The team was out of the top three for sheep.

Overall, Pennsylvania's team (which was formerly the Lancaster County team until it captured first place at the 4-H Achievement Days at University Park last July) came in fifth with 1487 points. At the top of the scoreboard was Maryland with 1519 points, followed by Virginia, Indiana and Kentucky.

A Maryland youth also took first place on an individual basis. He was J. D. Shanks with 514 points. He was also top individual for beef, followed by teammate Lori Hobbs. Lancaster County's Kenneth Brubaker was fifth in the combined standings.

ATTENTION: DAIRYMEN
To save money and improve milk production

Feed Dairy Special 40XX
The key to efficiency in any dairy feeding program is getting maximum performance out of homegrown grains and roughages while keeping out-of-pocket feed costs down. That's why Vigortone developed Dairy Special 40XX for use in legume hay or haylage rations.

This potent pre-mix contains abundant phosphorus to balance off the high calcium content of these roughages and provides proper levels of other major minerals, trace minerals and vitamins.

Legume programs are well balanced with Dairy Special 40XX, and the need for supplemental protein is much less. Best of all, your cows soon respond to their full bred-in potential to produce milk.

Dairy Special 50XX
for the dry cow
Proper nutrition for the dry cow is just as important as for the producing cow. It's during this period that the stage is set for the level of production she will have throughout the lactation period. Vigortone's Dairy Special 50XX is properly suited to fortify high roughage rations of dry cows and keep them in excellent condition right up to freshening.

The Jacob H. Fishers

Goats are their business, hobby, and love

The Fishers have learned to enjoy goats not only as a livelihood, but also as a hobby. Here, they stand with their collection of goat trinkets which range anywhere from large stuffed animals and wall paintings to a tiny ¼-inch goat charm for a bracelet

By JOANNE SPAHR

MANHEIM - Standing by the goat stall, getting a story, the reporter suddenly feels a slight tap on her shoulder. Turning around, she finds an eager and adorable yearling goat staring her straight in the face, pleading with its eyes for attention.

Asked if the goat was trained to do this, Mrs. Jacob H. Fisher, Jr., (Jane), Manheim R1, replies nonchalantly, "Oh, no, she just learned to do that herself." The taps keep coming until the reporter is forced to stop the interview and succomb to the desire to play with the animal. Then, the other yearlings in the pen get into the act, and the reporter is nibbled, licked, and bumped until everybody in the stall is content.

Watching the scene with amusement, Jane finally says with a mixture of pride and love in her voice, "They all have their own personalities and little traits that set them apart."

She and her husband should know. After 21 years of raising goats and building up their present herd to the size of 80, they are experts in the business. And, they are one of the three state inspected goat dairies in the area. All told, the Fishers milk 35 goats and have the rest for herd replacement and breeding stock.

"We raise all our female kids, and let them freshen," explains Fisher, "Then once a year or so we cull the herd, keeping the best milkers for ourselves." They sell all their buck kids, however. They have special kidding pens for the raising of the little ones.

Jane remembers the first time they went to sell a goat at an auction.

"We had the three children along," she laughs. "And, the whole time we walked along, all of them cried, 'We want Betty!' - the whole time!" she adds for emphasis.

"Jake and I just looked at each other," she goes on, "and wondered what kind of parents the other people must have thought we were with these three constantly bawling children," she chuckles. To finish her story, she adds that that was the first and last episode of crying children at sales.

Believe it or not, they got used to the idea of selling the goats," she states.

The Fishers have four out of the five good milking breeds in their herd. They have Alpine, Toggenburg, Saanan, and Nubian. The only one they don't have is LaMancha. Although the animals don't follow a particular breed color, there are distinctive ways to tell them apart. The Nubians are the most easily identified because of their exceptionally long, droopy ears and Roman-type noses. When Nubians are crossed with any other breed, the length is added to a normal-sized ear. Fisher does a lot of crossbreeding because this creates a "hybrid vigor" and better milk.

At present, the Fishers are in the business primarily for the milk production, and not for the breeding stock, itself.

Like the different breeds of dairy cows, different goats give different types of milk. Nubians, for instance, are higher in butterfat and give

Goats

less milk than the Swiss breeds The Swiss breeds, on the other hand, are similar to Holsteins in that they produce more milk with less butterfat Fisher says that, in general, four quarts of milk per day is a good output for a goat The range is anywhere from two to seven quarts a day

"When you take the proportion of body weight to milk production, a goat is really a more efficient producer than a cow," he points out

The time it takes the Fishers to do their milking is two-and-a-half hours While there are milking machines for goats, Jane doesn't like to use them

"I think I can do the milking in less time by hand than with a machine," she explains What she really dislikes about machines is the cleaning and sterilization of the tubes and various parts To her, hand milking is just as easy

"I keep telling him (Fisher) that when he retires, we'll get a milker," says Jane Fisher works off the farm as a mechanic, so in the mornings it is Jane's job to do the work In the evenings Fisher helps

As with any milking operation, theirs is a set routine

"Till I'm done, I open and close seven doors," explains Jane

The opening and closing of doors permits the animals to line up in the hall outside the milking parlor In the parlor, the person doing the milking stands in a pit, and the goats stand on a ramp

To begin the operation, Jane opens the pen doors making the hall into an entryway where all 35 animals line up to wait their turn at being milked When she is ready to begin, she opens one door to the milking parlor and a goat eagerly trots up the ramp As soon as the animal is in place, Jane shuts the door again, so an overanxious goat doesn't try to get her turn in ahead of time

When she finishes with the one animal, she opens another door that leads to a holding area and the animal walks out Then, she opens the first door again, and lets a new animal in for milking, and the whole process begins again

They line up outside there, and wait their turn just like people the Fishers explain

As was mentioned the milking takes about two and a half hours to complete Then, of course there is cleaning up and bedding to be done

The milk is then stored in 40-quart cans and placed in a front opening milk cooler until the Fishers make their milk run to Pure Goat Products in Boyertown, where they sell their milk For 35 goats, they get about two cans of milk per day, or 80 quarts of milk

They also sell some milk locally

"Oh, it's getting more and more popular all the time," exclaims Jane "We have doctors who we don't even know sending people to us all the time!"

Nothing is more irresistible than two little white kids. Adorable as they are, however, these are bucks which Fisher will sell at auction

Although Fisher admits that not all the components of goat's milk are known, there are certain known qualities which make it easier to digest. First of all, it comes from the goat naturally homogenized.

"Oh, you'll get some cream on the top if you let it set for several days," says Jane. "But, very little," she adds.

The major factor, however, which makes it easier to digest is that it produces a soft curd. Because of this particular asset, babies and people with ulcers are recommended to drink it.

The Fishers can site several instances where doctors' patients have been virtually cured by drinking goats' milk.

One mother came to them with a 17-month-old baby who was "all skin and bones" and who had "black circles under its eyes" from not being able to digest food properly. The situation had gotten so bad with the child that the physician was stymied and had practically given up.

"Then, somebody told them about trying goats' milk, and he sent them to us," reveals Jane. "And, in one day, they could see a big change. They have been feeding the child goats' milk for five years now."

What is particularly amazing is that if the child doesn't get its allotment of goats' milk everyday, his bowels won't work properly.

And, to add to the irony of the story, the family has a dairy of their own, but the baby can't even drink homogenized cows' milk.

As for the progress of the child's health, Jane says emphatically, "When Jake sees that baby now, he can't believe it was the skinny little one that came here five years ago."

Another time, several doctors sent eight different babies to the Fishers for milk because they were infected with a virus that was spreading around the county. One of the symptoms was that the infants couldn't keep cows' milk in their bodies. But, in no time at all, goats' milk cleared up the problem.

"Right now there are studies going on to see exactly what is in goats' milk," comments Fisher.

The current health food craze has really had an effect on business, also. Along with the growth of health food stores, the sale of goats' milk has been stimulated.

With the increasing interest in goats' milk, several old wive's tales have also been dispelled. First of all, goats' milk does not "taste funny." Instead, it has a very creamy texture and delicate flavor. And, second of all, goats don't "smell bad," either. In fact the females have no odor whatsoever. The point of origination for the story of goats bad odor is that the bucks have a very pungent body oil on their coats. The smell is so strong in fact, that the only way to get rid of it after touching a buck is to use Clorax bleach.

However, bucks are used primarily for breeding, and not, of course, for milk. So, in general, a goat dairy has very little extraneous odor.

As for the idea that goats' milk has a peculiar flavor, Fisher passes that off by explaining that with proper cleanliness, sterilization of jars and cans, and the proper cooling procedures, the taste is very delicious and delicate.

In their 21 years of goat raising, the Fishers have slowly grown to value the animals highly and become involved with them beyond simple work animals. In fact, goats have become a hobby for them. For 15 years they have been collecting their "goat collection", and since their children have left home, they have really become engrossed in their hobby.

"We collect anything that has to do with goats," they explain. Then, they point to their china closet full to overflowing with goat figurines, and it becomes evident how large their collection really is.

The smallest piece to their collection is a tiny, ¼-inch goat charm for a bracelet. From this tiny piece, the collection ranges to huge rams' horns on the wall. In between the two sizes, there are music boxes with goats on them, salt and pepper shakers, key rings, ash trays, flower vases, corn husk goats, cookie cutters, Courier and Ives paintings,

Swine awards handed out

NORRISTOWN, Pa. Members of the Montgomery County 4-H Livestock Club were recently presented with their awards on the Market Swine project for the past year. Receiving the Montgomery County grand champion was Andrew Leidy of Souderton for his market hog project shown at the Buck-Montgomery 4-H swine show and sale held at the Perkiomenville Sales Stables this summer. Wendy Kunda's, Royersford, entry won reserve champion honors. The county high score in fitting and showmanship went to Pat Teaford of Norristown, a first year member.

Merit ribbons for project scores were presented by Nancy M. Kadwill, county agent. Blue ribbon winners included Wendy Kunda, Royersford, Karen and Andrew Leidy, Souderton. Winning red merit ribbons were Kelly Kunda and Lisa Kunda, Royersford, Helen Driscoll, Lee Driscoll, and Phoebe Driscoll of Gwynedd Valley, and Mark Moyer of Perkiomenville.

Several new members were also introduced and welcomed into the club. These included Amy Marczuk, Harleysville, and Beverly, Mike, and Kathy Bergey of Telford.

Leader of the swine project was Gordon Alderfer of Kulpsville. Anyone interested in joining 4-H or learning more about raising pigs should contact the 4-H office at 277-0574.

Goats

Hummel ceramic pieces, and the list goes on and on

Along with the figures displayed on the shelves, the Fishers collect books about goats They have several of the Billy Whiskers travel collection such as Billy Whiskers in an Airplane, Billy Whiskers at the Circus, and Billy Whiskers On the Mississippi And, of course, their collection wouldn't be complete without Three Billy Goats Gruff Some of the Billy Whiskers collection have a 1907 copywrite

"Jake keeps a list in his pocket and when we go somewhere, we look to see what we have or what we don't have," explains Jane.

To get their collection to its present size, the Fishers have combed gift shops, flea markets, and old book stores. Friends have also kept them in mind, and brought them pieces to complete their collection.

"We have a lovely German piece that friends brought us from the shore," says Jane

With all the objects they have in their collection, Jane wants at least one more thing She has a goat quilt pattern that she wants to have quilted someday

The Fishers' dedication to the goat business does not stop with a dairy and a hobby, however They are members of the Pennsylvania Dairy Goat Association, of which Fisher was president at one time They also belong to a loal club, the South Penn Goat Association And, they are active in promoting goats by hosting Farm City Tours and by working on goat seminars

"We really want to let people know all about the business," they say.

No one would argue that they are not doing their share. Just meeting them and chatting about goats for a few hours is enough to stimulate an interest in their business, hobby, and love

Recipe

Pink Popcorn Balls

Seven cups popped popcorn.

Measure and put into top part of double boiler:

3 cups miniature marshmallows
2 tablespoons butter
¼ teaspoon salt

In bottom part of double boiler heat about one inch of water to boiling. Place top part of double boiler over this and stir until marshmallows are melted. Tint pink with a few drops of red food coloring. Pour melted marshmallow mixture over popped corn and shape quickly into balls with well greased hands. Yield: 10 medium balls.

HEIFERS STOCK BULLS

Organization reaches consumers through parades

By JOANNE SPAHR

MANHEIM, Pa. - Fairs are exciting events. There are the livestock competitions, the midways, the rides, the people, and the parades. And, while most agribusiness people think of Fairs mainly in the light of showing animals or discussing new implements on display. Fairs can also be looked at as a time to actively promote good relations between farmers and consumers.

At least, that's how one farm organization views them. The Lancaster County Farmers Association decided that this year they were going to get out there and push farming to the city people by building a float and taking part in the various county parades.

"Our whole purpose was to reach the consumer and make them realize how important we are to their daily lives," explains Mrs. Robert Brubaker, (Lois) Manheim R2 one of the women in the organization was was responsible for getting the float together. "After all, when you think about it, if it weren't for us they couldn't eat," she adds.

Their float was entitled "Farmers Nourish the World," and so far it has won first place for most beautiful in the non-commercial category at the Ephrata Fair, and taken a top placing at the New Holland Fair.

"We really weren't out for the money," says Janie Garber, Marietta R1, another one of the four women who took on the chore of assembling the float. "But, now our costs are paid for, and that is sort of good to know," she continues.

As with many good ideas, to carry them out requires a lot of work, and that is exactly what the women who volunteered to do the project found out.

To start with, they had to come up with an idea. This was formulated at a board meeting where several different concepts were mulled over. Their particular idea originated from the Lehigh County Farmers Association wo had the idea to use a barn and grass at the Lehigh Fair. From this basic idea, however, the Lancaster group innovated and came up with their own flourishs.

Basically, the Lancaster County float consists of a 5 x 8 foot red barn on a 7 x 16 foot flat bed wagon. Then, embellishing the barn are all sorts of crops and animals found on the farm. For instance, on either side of the barn doors are shocks of corn, and in the front on the left hand corner is a display of farm produce sitting on a wheel barrow. Adorning the sides of the barn walls, themselves, are antique rakes donated by one of the members.

The group also has livestock on the float, which is probably the most attention-getting part of the wholecreation. In the front right hand corner is a pen of piglets and between them and the barn stands a calf.

The Robert Brubakers work on assembling the Lancaster County Farmers Association float before the New Holland Fair.

"If the remarks we hear along the parade route are any indication of our success, I'd say we're doing pretty good," say Lois and Janie. "We kept hearing people say, 'Oh, look at those cute little pigs,'" notes Lois. She also points out that even in the livestock tents at fairs, there are rarely young animals. So, for many city dwellers, the piglets on the float are a real treat to behold.

When the float arrives before the fudges during the parade, one of the women on the float feeds the calf out of a bottle. The president of the organization and hiand Mrs. Earl Newcomer, ride on the float dressed in quaint, old-fashioned clothing. Two children and another adult also ride on it.

Some of the other decorations to adorn the float are pumpkins, indian corn, apples, potatoes, and two pig troughs of flowers, which are placed beside the barn.

"We tried to include every area of farming," says Janie. Unfortunately, they only had a limited amount of space to work with, so some of the different facets of farming were omitted out ot necessity. The float is, nevertheless, highly representative of all types of farming.

According to Jane and Lois, assembling the float the first time was really hectic. A specially sized barn was made for them in a matter of four days, and when it arrived it then had to be welded together and bolted down on the wagon. Before this, however, the grass, which was manufactured astroturf, had to be stapled to the flat bed. Letters for the association's name had to be cut out and nailed down along the side of the float onto the grass, and white crepe paper which hangs down under the grass had to be cut and fringed. The little operations took a good day's work in themselves, then after that came the assembling of the float which was another eight-hour day.

After the float was assembled, the next part of the project to come was decoration with the various commodities, and after the parade,came the tearing down and storage of the loose pieces of the float. Because the group will be taking the float to several Fairs, the loose parts have to be stored for transport. Then, when

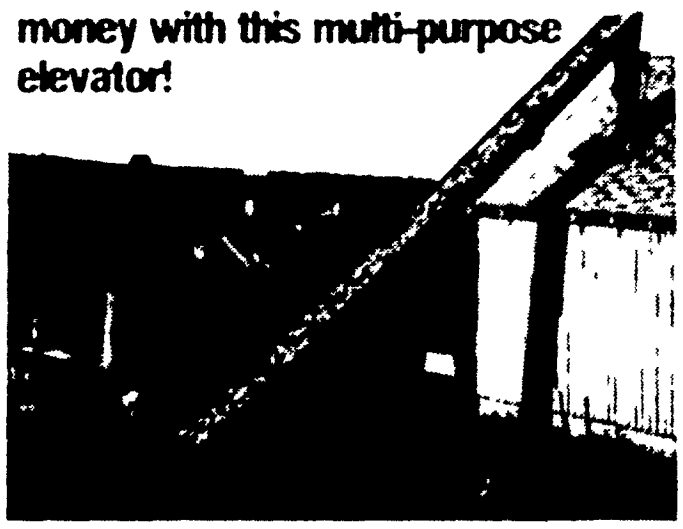
New Idea's Long-Reach Elevators

REACH! Get extra reach and save money with this multi-purpose elevator!



Take our word for it, this New Idea elevator will do the same job that longer (and more expensive) elevators do. The way they've engineered and balanced the extra overhang beyond the wheels makes the important difference. It raises and lowers quickly with a new, safer, easier-to-operate hand winch. The deeply embossed areas around bolt holes and steel angles that overlap joints give it rigid, no-sag construction and extra long life. Additional strength is provided by formed stress plates welded to the bottom of each section. Five lengths—31 to 51 feet. Choice of hoppers and drive. Written full year guarantee.

New Idea's Auger Elevators

Makes short work out of long reach jobs!

Get top quality in a balanced auger that has a unitized center drive section, fewer working parts and less maintenance. Easy to move, easy for one man to set up and operate.

Make short work of those long-reach jobs with capacity up to 2,600 bushels per hour. Choose 6" or 8" diameter auger; gasoline, electric or PTO drive; gravity or tilt hopper.

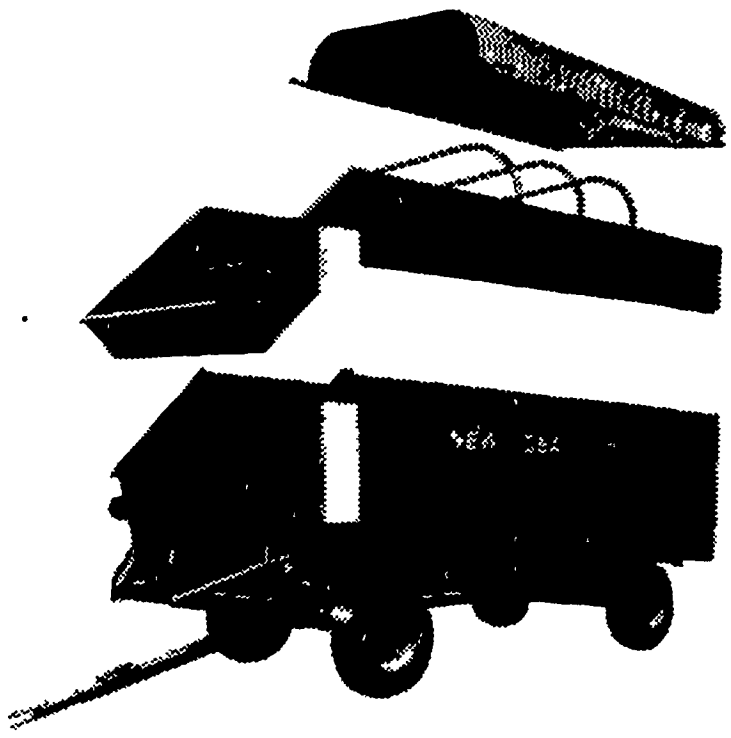
Pick the length for your operation . . . 35 to 60 feet, in wide, stable tread with heavy duty scissors design truck.

Its relatively low cost is a real smilemaker!

AVCO NEW IDEA FARM EQUIPMENT

We make your job a little easier.

New Idea's Forage Boxes



Two rugged boxes built to last.

New Idea's two big forage boxes—the 14-ft. and the 16-ft.—are both built to get the job done fast. Both are available with 2 or 3 beaters, and galvanized roof. The 16" diameter beaters have staggered teeth, to give a waterfall effect, delivering a more uniform feed to the cross auger. The 16" diameter cross auger means you get smooth, positive unloading without chains, slats, bearings, or idlers. In all, these attractively priced boxes are built to bring your crops in—fast.

PRE-SEASON SPECIALS

Take early delivery on an Avco New Idea Manure Spreader.

Judy's horse is a grey American Saddlebred. Although Judy has won many ribbons with the animal, it took a lot of hard work and patience to reach the point where she could show him after last Spring's mishap.

Judy Anderson learned to work with others in 4-H

By JOANNE SPAHR

LANCASTER, Pa - Judy Anderson, the 17-year-old daughter of Mr and Mrs Charles Anderson, 1440 Country Club Drive, has won at least 70 ribbons in her five years of belonging to 4-H horse clubs Yet, while she is undoubtedly proud of her accomplishments, that topic, rarely, if ever, comes up in a conversation with her unless she's specifically questioned about it. Instead, she talks willingly and enthusiastically about the teen leadership program she is currently invoved in, the horse bowl team she has been quizzing on for the past few years, and her veterinary science project which she is "hooked on."

I've learned so much about people - about working with people," remarks the open and outgoing teenager

"Most of all, I had to learn how to work with the younger members," she grins. "At first I talked down to them, and then I realized that I couldn't do that and be a good leader."

This is Judy's third year at being a teen leader, and by this time she has moved up to the level where she assumes a full leadership role in the club. And, after growing up in the 4-H system, she knows how valuable her position is to the younger 4-H'ers.

"I started out in a big club," she explains, "and, it just wasn't the same as the smaller clubs I've belonged to since then. We had no teen leaders, and the older leaders were nearly run ragged trying to get to us all"

As a result, the club had less to offer her on a personal, one to one, basis But, now that she is a member of the Easy Riders 4-H Horse Club, which has a membership of only eight, she is able to give and get more individual attention and has branched out into a new area of interest - veterinary science.

"You could say 4-H has influenced my career choice," says the dark-haired young lady, "because I had always wanted to be a trainer, and now I don't." After a laugh about her another Fair and parade come up, it has to be redecorated all over again.

All in all, it is a lot of work, even for four people who basically pout it together at first. Besides Janie and Lois, Mr. and Mrs. James Kreider, Quarryvilleand Linda Kreider helped.

"But, the work was alot of fun, and it was all worthwhile if we can get our point across," says Janie.

Both Lois and Janie make the point that they feel more farmers organizations should try this project. Besides the hard work and fun, it is a rewarding way to actively take part in a parade and get a point across at the time.

unexpected negative remark, Judy adds the positive, more expected statement, 'Now, instead of training, I'm interested in being a vet's assistant which I wouldn't have been if it hadn't been for the project I'm working on.

Judy became interested in working on the veterinary science project after seeing another girl in her club doing it.

I thought to myself 'why not' and I tried it," she explained. At first she found it almost too challenging and now she just can't get out of it.

It's funny, she remarked but that's the same information that had been my biology book in class but I never really learned it until now.

Horse bowl is the other 4-H activity that has really increased her desire to learn.

You should see her index file," says her mother, "she must have one this thick." (She makes a gesture with her hands showing the file to be two to three inches deep.)

"In horse bowl you learn to think fast," explains Judy. "Some teams you compete against are so quick that there are times the whole question isn't even out before they know the answer."

So far, Lancaster County doesn't have intra-county competition.

"We wanted to start up competition in the county, states Judy, "but, we haven't been able to get that many people to go out for teams."

So far, the team that Judy has quizzed on was fifth at state competition one year, and seventh this year. Judy feels that this is an accomplishment considering that they were fifth the first year they tried it.

Traveling to competition is another example of an added extra 4-H has given to Judy.

"I made so many friends from 4-H," she says. She has traveled quite a bit in her connections with the organization. For instance, she has been to 4-H State Days, leadership school, state horse show competition at Harrisburg, and she's traveled around the area as a member of County Council.

"It's a great experience meeting all those people," she says.

The state 4-H show in the Harrisburg farm show arena was also rewarding for another reason - she did well. In Saddle Seat Equitation she took 4th place. Saddle Seat Equitation more-or-less judges the rider - the way they hold the reins, control the horse, and hold their legs, etc.

"The competition was really tough up there," recalls Judy. "First, we went through county competition, then districts, then states." To take a top placing turned out to be really rewarding for Judy after all the work she had to go through.

However, on the whole, Judy says that her basic attitude on winning has altered in the past few years.

"Competition used to be unhealthy for me because all I wanted was to win," she admits. "Now, I think I've grown through the 4-H experience to learn as long as I do my best, that's all that matters - whether I take a ribbon or not."

This attitude was fostered by a rather severe mishap with her horse. He threw her last Spring, which ended her showing season pretty quickly when she had to go to the hospital. During her stay in the hospital, she underwent surgery and now has metal plates in her arm to prove it.

"When I came out, we tried to sell the horse," explains Judy. "Unfortunately, nobody wanted him because he had a reputation

At that time the Andersons didn't know what to do because two knowledgeable trainers told them that no one could ever ride that horse again

They just said he was crazy, states Judy bluntly

So the Andersons brought him home after being unable to sell him and Judy went to work to tame the animal

And, that's when I found out that he'd just been pushed too much when he was young because he was the offspring of a six time world champion

It turns out that his trainers before Judy had whipped him pretty severely, and the animal had grown shy and distrustful of humans

"It took a long time," says Judy, "but I tamed him, and now when I ride in competition, if he does something right, that is what matters to me Just knowing that I could do it when two trainers thought it was impossible is what's important to me"

Asked if this was an example of how 4-H builds character, Judy said "no"

"I don't think you can say 4-H builds character," explains Judy. "4-H gives you room to grow if you want to"

"That's the key," she continues, "4-H helps people to grow if they want to, but you're not forced to build up your character if you don't feel like it." There's a fine shade of difference between the two concepts, but one that a long-time 4-H'er can see.

Two other intangible characteristics which 4-H has instilled in Judy are a sense of responsibility and initiative

It's hard to explain but I found through being a teen leader that if I didn't do something, it wouldn't get done," she explains

This year Judy will encounter a new experience as a teen leader She will be helping with a club for children with learning disabilities

Instead of horsemanship, she'll be teaching them how to embroider and to do other handicraft, creative things

"We'll be working one to one at first," says Judy It should be a really good experience for everybody"

After being a teen leader all these years, it seems only natural that Judy would go on to being an adult leader after she's no longer eligible to be in the organization

"I probably will lead a group later," she says, "because once I reach 19 I know I won't want to get out of 4-H"

Raelene Harbold writes about Jamaica

Editors Note The following is a newsletter written by Raelene Harbold, Lancaster County's International 4-H Youth Exchange delegate to Jamaica Trinidad Tobago Her visit to those countries began on August 15 and will conclude in December The IFYE program is sponsored by the National 4-H Foundation in behalf of the Cooperative Extension Service Funds for this exchange were raised locally by 4-H clubs, women's groups, agriculture groups, service clubs and agri-businesses, along with the National 4-H Foundation

Many of you may not be aware of the change in my schedule for the IFYE program Due to political differences with Pakistan the program was cancelled just three days prior to my scheduled departure

I travelled to the National 4-H Center on schedule, but not knowing to which country I would be assigned In a few days all the new arrangements were made and I was on my way to Jamaica

My stay in Jamaica was to last only 2½ weeks, and the remainder of my program will be spent in Trinidad and Tobago

What is the country of Jamaica like? The island has a mountain range running through the center As you travel the roads wind up the sides of the mountain with beautiful views of the valleys below

There are trees everywhere and in spite of the recent dry weather, everything is green I am amazed at the large variety of vegetation that grows in one area

Along with the green vegetation there is the blue sea and white beaches for the many resort hotels, and it is beautiful The water is clear and cool, while the sand is soft and clean Put these two with a star lit night and music, and you can hardly go wrong!

This is an overall look of the country Some things took me awhile to get accustomed to driving on the left side of the road, and seeing cattle and goats walking along the side of the road But it hasn't taken long to adapt

The people are friendly, and my stay in Jamaica was very pleasant

Hunting reminder

HARRISBURG - Youngsters under the age of 16 who are planning to hunt in Pennsylvania for the first time this fall are being urged by the Game Commission to take a hunter education course right away, if they have not already done so

In order to qualify for a hunting license in Pennsylvania, a person under 16 years of age must present either (a) evidence that he or she held a hunting license in Pennsylvania or another state in a prior year, of (b) a certificate of competency showing that he or she has successfully completed a course of instruction in the safe handling of firearms and bows and arrows

Hunter education courses are being held throughout the state, and youngsters who hope to purchase a hunting license this fall should enroll in the classes now

Seniors milk for fun

LITITZ, Pa Goat milking was one of the major events of the day when five county Senior Centers met at Lititz Springs Park on September 24 for a Bicentennial field day The centers, located in Lancaster City, Mt Joy, Columbia, Solanco, and Lititz are multi-purpose centers operated by the Lancaster County Office of Aging to provide socialization, information, referral, a noon meal, and other services to the county's senior citizens

The goats for the day were provided by Mrs Jacob Fisher, Manheim Rt Each Center nominated a contestant for the event, usually someone who had milked many cows in their lifetime, and they competed to see who could get the most milk in 20 seconds The winning center was presented with a trophy by Peter Dys, executive director of the Lancaster County Office of Aging

The Senior Center members had planned many other events for their field day, also Schock Senior Center in Mount Joy organized games of skill and fun Lancaster City Senior Center constructed boards painted with colonial figures that had a hole instead of a head People then had their pictures taken with their heads poking out of the figures Solanco Senior Center in Refton lead a sing along, and the Columbia Senior Center presented a salute to Hawaii The Lititz Senior Center was busy as host, and each of the centers contributed in many other ways to making the Bicentennial Field Day a success for those involved

Russel Klein and Paul Horning take Ephrata Holstein show

Paul Horning, Stevens R1, and his reserve grand champion Holstein cow. Horning showed her last week at the Ephrata Fair. A week earlier the Cloister FFA member showed the reserve junior champion at the Pennsylvania Junior Dairy Show in Harrisburg a contest which represents only the best in the state.

Russel Kline and "Chflokie Vanalso Royal," a five year old Holstein which captured the grand champion title at the Ephrata Fair last week. The week before she stood as reserve grand champion in Harrisburg, competing against the finest FFA Holsteins in Pennsylvania.

By DIETER KRIEG

EPHRATA - Russel Kline, a 21-year old FFA member from Denver R3, captured his fourth grand championship at the Ephrata Fair's Holstein Show last week. Runner-up in the contest was another consistent top competitor, Paul Horning of Stevens R1. The week before they both walked off with champion honors at the Pennsylvania Junior Dairy Show in Harrisburg. Kline showed the reserve grand champion (the same cow which won him highest honors here at Ephrata), while Horning had the reserve junior champion in state-wide competition.

Involved and interested in dairying for a number of years, the two champion showmen were interviewed briefly by Lancaster farming last week. Details of their goals and accomplishments follow the placings of the Holstein show:

Fitting and Showing

Horning was chosen as the grand champion showman of the entire show by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pepple, Oxford, who served as judges. He also received the reserve grand champion fitting award.

Top fitting honors went to Carol Balmer. Atlantic Breeders Cooperative presented prizes to the youngest competitors who excelled in showing and fitting.

RUSSEL KLINE

Saying that he's lost a lot before he came up with winning animals, Kline credits the turnaround to having gained more experience and better entries. He's been showing dairy cattle since his freshman year at Ephrata High School.

While having "lost a lot" over the years, he remembers that his breakthrough into the winner's circle came with a chain calf given to him by the Cloister FFA Chapter. After that came "Ingra," his prize-winning cow which stood undefeated at local, regional and state shows for three consecutive years. This year, however, he chose to take "Chflokie Vanalso Royal" to the shows. She stood second at the Junior Dairy Show in Harrisburg, and won the highest honors here at Ephrata. He purchased her a year ago at a sale in Mifflin County. His father is a cattle dealer.

A candidate for the American Farmer Degree, (he will receive it in Kansas City next month) Kline has been farming on his own for the past 18 months He owns 45 Holsteins - most of them registered - and rents 70 acres of cropland in northern Lancaster County

Holstein show

The accomplished showman is possibly a contradiction to the common thought that young fellows can't get started in farming anymore without significant help from parents, relatives, or friends Kline claims to have begun his career in dairying without having had anything given to him for nothing His herd was initially started with FFA calves, and he credits his voag instructor, Lew Ayres, for having sent him off to a fine start Ayres selected the chain calf which began Kline's showing success

As his herd grew and the first animals became of milking age, Kline transferred the cows to his brother's farm at Denver R2

"Dairy farming is my main interest," Kline said assuredly, adding that it was no secret. Consequently an opportunity to rent a farm came along in the Spring of 1975 and he gladly accepted. Ever since then he and his wife, the former Ellen G. Martin, have been farming on their own. With a gleam in his eye and a broad grin he enthusiastically and proudly added that he had just recently became the father of twin boys - Matthew and Michael.

While still a student, Kline worked at Gehman's Feed Mill near Denver, an experience which he claims taught him a lot about dairy feeds, minerals and vitamins. His DHIA rolling herd average reads 16500 pounds of milk and 650 of fat.

In planning his future, Kline wants to stress quality, rather than quantity. He's confident of dairying having a promising future - at least more so than other branches of livestock farming - and predicts that "people will wake up one of these days to realize that farmers are vital to everyone's existence."

PAUL HORNING

A herd of 100 milking Holsteins or more, and possibly even a jugging operation, is what Paul Horning would like to see in his future. A 1974 graduate of Ephrata High School, he, like Kline, says that much of his interest in dairying was inspired by Lew Ayres, who has guided the Ephrata voag department since 1961 Ayres, incidentally, has coached several dairy judging teams to national recognition and it was just a year ago since his team was first in the nation

Also like Kline, Horning began his experiences in the show ring with an FFA chain calf selected by Ayres "It turned out to be a real good heifer," Horning recalled, "I showed her at the All-American that first year and she stood first out of 65 head" That was in 1972. The same heifer was also junior champion that year This year Horning's entry, "Turnpike View Triune Donna," was reserve junior champion

A member of his school's dairy judging team for a couple of years, Horning describes a good cow as one which is tall, upstanding, open ribbed, with thin hide, and a lot of dairyness. He was high individual out of more than 200 during FFA week three years ago and once placed second-highest in a national contest held at Columbus, Ohio. He credits coach Ayres for his accomplishments.

When attending a sale (his grand champion at Ephrata was a purchased animal, but his senior yearling at Harrisburg was homebred), Horning says he pays more attention to pedigrees than anything else. He studies his catalog first, then determines which ones he wants to take a look at in the barn.

The owner of 15 Holsteins within the family's herd of 80, Horning has strong ambitions to go into dairying full-time. Presently he works on his father's farm near Stevens. On top of that, he spends parts of three days per week working for an uncle who's in the poultry business.

But it's dairying that he likes best, and he says he's found it interesting ever since he was a little kid. Showing dairy cattle, or perhaps more accurately put - working towards having a top animal - is the challenge Horning likes most of all. Aside from having ambitions of owning a large dairy herd, he also wants to be able to have the kind of breeding stock which will command good prices at sales.

Adams Co. Farm City Week set

GETTYSBURG, Pa - "The 1976 Farm City Week Celebration should be the biggest and best in Adams County History" reported Stanley Wolf at an Adams County Agricultural Council meeting recently Wolf, Farm City Week co-chairman, stated that with the leadership provided by the Agricultural Council, Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce, and Gettysburg Kiwanis, there will be a real exchange between farm and city residents of the county. Farm City Week will start October 15 with an agricultural display on the vacant lot next to the courthouse and climax with a dinner dance on October 23 at Kings Valley. During the week, contests, farm and industry open houses, banquets, and a land use conference is planned.

Tom Balthaser, Adams County District conservationist, reported his committee has lined up 10 farmers who will open their farms to visitors on October 17 between 1 p.m. and 4 p.m. Farmers participating are: Paul Waybright and Robert Hay, Gettysburg; Ronald Harrison, Littlestown; Larry Mummert and Thomas Trone, East Berlin, Lloyd Benner and James Quanbeck, Fairfield, Glenn Kime, Gardeners, Everett Weiser, York Springs, and Harold Garretson, Gardners Balthasar stated maps will be printed giving directions to the farms and will be distributed throughout the county The public is invited to visit as many of these farms as they like on Sunday

Gil Evans, Adams Electric Cooperative, reported the annual Farm City Banquet will be held at Kings Valley this year in the form of a dinner dance Evans announced that tickets are available from any member of the Agricultural Council, Chamber of Commerce Office, or Kiwanis Tickets are $8 a piece. This includes social hour featuring Adams County agricultural products, beef dinner, and dancing to the music of the Country Shadows.

Mrs. Ruth Detweiler, Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce, reported the Retail Merchants would provide the band for the dinner dance and local business and organizations would provide contestants to compete against the farmers The contests featuring nail driving, tug of war, and log sawing will be held between 2 and 4 p m on October 16 at the courthouse lot Mrs Detweiler also reported several businesses will be hosting an open house on October 19 between 2 and 4 p m

Tom Clowney announced there will be an agricultural display on the lot next to the courthouse on October 15 and 16 The display will include farm animals, crops, food products, and machinery The ribbon cutting ceremony officially opening Farm City Week will occur at 2 p m on Friday at the display area

The next meeting of the Agricultural Council was set for 8 p m , October 6 at the Adams County Extension Office to finalize plans for Farm City Week More information on Farm City Week may be obtained by contacting John Schwartz at the Adams County Extension Office

NATURAL ORGANIC PRODUCTS

ORGANIC FERTILIZER is coming into prominence fast because of necessity. Without it there is too many bugs, blights, soil compaction and bad effects of poisonous sprays in the consumer including your livestock. Organic farmers with many older and newer products have more nutritious crops at less overall cost.

A natural mineral with enzymes and amino acids, mined in Oregon is both a terrific soil balancer and excellent livestock feed. A very little manure or nitrogen with it works wonders for big healthy crops. Great for healthy livestock and poultry-cage fatigue, mortality, vent picking, (no debeaking needed) swine diseases (no medication needed), afterbirth retention, etc. Saves about 15 percent to 30 percent on feed consumption, no kidding.

A new stabilized enzyme sprayed on the soil greatly and quickly improves poor soil, clay and wet soggy soils which bake later. Dries up swamps, yet makes soil hold moisture; a miracle but so is nature. Dealers wanted for above products.

Electronic seed treatment is also a crop improver, especially roots, protein, feed value. Done at Edgar M. Martin's farm near New Holland. Phone 717-354-9917 for appointment.

Lactobase and Agriserum are excellent and proven seed treatments for big roots, more nutrition and protein in crops, soil improvement. Multiply precious soil life and earthworms fast at very little cost.

With only Lactobase and Agriserum and trace minerals as fertilizer for 5 years, I got from 10 acres, over 600 bushels Triticale, a cross between wheat and rye. I cleaned it and sell for $6.00 a bushel. A vigorous grower, tall straw and extra high protein for livestock feed.

Organic produce companies are co-operating for a large Organic produce buying center possibly in New Holland next year. To qualify, keep the chemicals off the land and the children on the land where they belong and not take away jobs from town people. You can raise high quality with my products especially if applied earlier than planting time.

Auction shatters Hereford record

HERMISTON, Ore. - Records were shattered for Hereford cattle auctions when the final tallies were in on the Stone Ranch dispersion sale in Hermiston, Ore., this month. The $2,209,405 gross sales topped the previous total for a Hereford sale by some $500,000.

A new record evaluation for a Hereford bull came when SR Big Arthur H201, a four-year-old, 2,290 pound bull, brought $160,000 for a one-half interest, making a $320,000 evaluation. The purchaser was 26 Bar Ranch, Stanfield, Ariz., co-owned by John Wayne and Louis Johnson.

Treefine Hereford Farm, Warsaw, Ohio, also owns an interest in SR Big Arthur H201, having purchased the interest in 1973. They retained their interest in the $320,000 evaluated bull, and he continues to serve as the main herd sire in the Treefine herd, as well as serving in the 26 Bar Ranch herd.

The 1,280 lots sold for an average of $1,726, with buyers representing 31 states and Mexico.

Beef club meets

MECHANICSBURG - The Cumberland County 4-H Baby Beef Club met September 20, in the United Telephone Building with 30 club members present. The meeting was called to order by Tim Potteiger, president.

Reports were given by members, and comments were made on the Carlisle Fair. Roxanne Leib reported on the county council picnic, Kevin Melott on the Chianina Show at Wrightsville, Bob Otto reported that Oct. 30 would be the date for the salted peanut sale, Tim Potteiger reported on State Days at Penn State University. The leaders also gave comments, and it was decided to have the annual 4-H Baby Beef Round up on November 16, at the Carlisle Livestock Auction.

Mr. Freund, assistant county agent, spoke to the club about selecting calves for the coming year.

The next meeting will be in October with Lancaster County 4-H Baby Beef Club as exchange guests.

Lampeter sheep show growing

LAMPETER - This year's turnout of sheep at the West Lampeter Fair recently was larger than last year's, but the competition was still smaller than Sally W. Martin, chairperson of the event, would like.

"We are trying to build on to our 4-H and FFA division," Mrs. Martin said, "and, by next year we should have a more extensive show."

An ardent supporter of 4-H and FFA youths, Mrs. Martin will gladly help anyone interested in or needing help with sheep projects.

The winners of this year's competition at the Lampeter Fair were Robert Ambler, 17, Cochranville, with the champion ram of the show, and Robert Zander, Kirkwood, with the champion ewe.

Ambler's animal was a Hampshire and Zander's was a purebred Dorset.

The first and second place winners from the Lampeter show were as follows:

Ram 1 year and under 2 - Robbie Ambler, Hampshire; Ernest Barrett, Shropshire; Tim Donough, Southdown; Ram lamb under 1 year - John Zander, Dorset; Robbie Ambler, Hampshire; Ernest Barrett, Shropshire; Donna Stoltzfus, Suffolk; Ewe 1 year and under 2 - Robert Zander, Dorset; Freddie Keys, Shropshire; Tim Donough, Southdown, Donna Stoltzfus, Hampshire; Christine Ambler, Shropshire; Pen of Lambs - Tim Donough, Southdown; Flock - Tim Donough; Market Lamb - Tim Donough, Suffolk; Cindy Donough, Shropshire; Pen of Market Lambs - 1. Tim Donough, Suffolk; 2. Cindy Donough, Shropshire; Showmanship - Freddie Keys, Fitting - Christine Ambler.

FFA members place at Expo

LANCASTER, Pa. - Two youths representing Penn Manor High School FFA recently placed first and second in agricultural mechanics competition held at the Eastern States Exposition in Springfield, Mass.

Competing against 14 other teams from the northeastern states, the Penn Manor-represented team took second over all.

Craig Harnish, Lancaster R2, also placed first in individual competition, and Raymond Caldwell, Millersville R1, took second, individually, in the contest.

The competition was both a practical examination as well as written. Some of the exercises the boys had to complete were wiring fuse boxes and master controls, identifying tools, figuring mathematical problems related to electricity, and identifying different motors and their best uses.

Tony Eberly, Denver R2, a member of the Cloister FFA, also competed in the exposition. He placed 4th over all in dairy products. To win his title, he competed against 44 other youths in identifying cheeses, scoring milk, and inspecting and grading milking equipment.

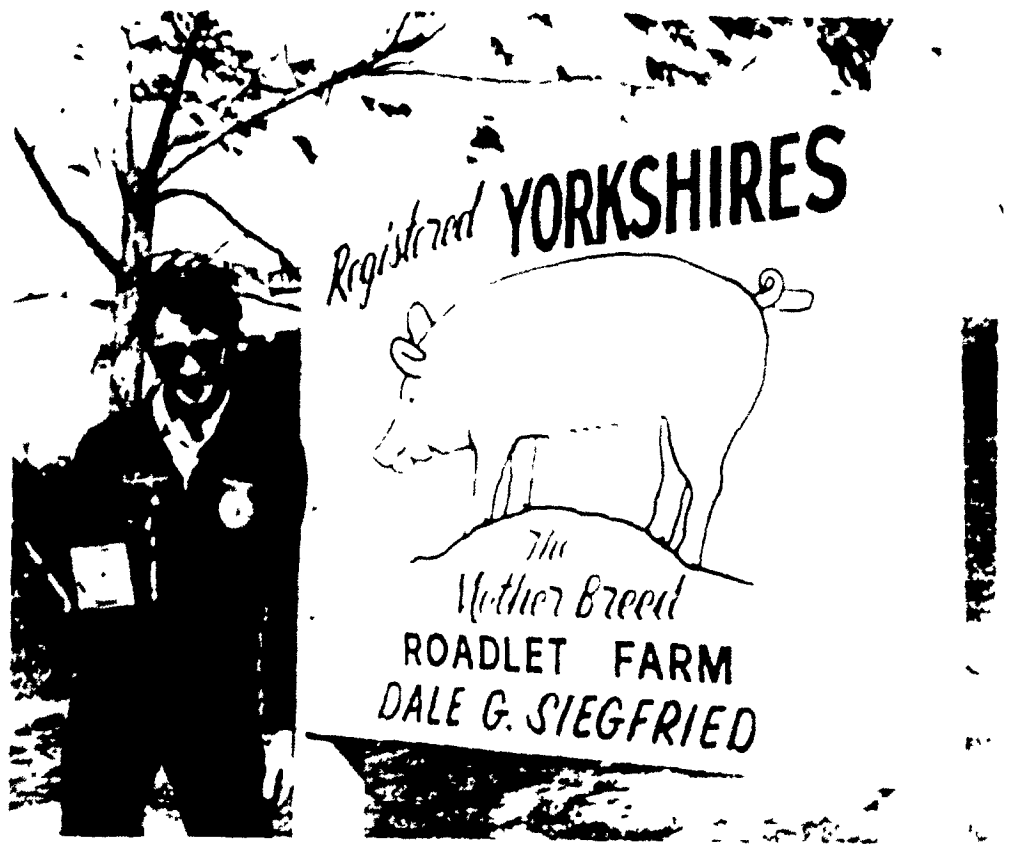
Dale has 12 acres of potatoes as part of his farming operation



Dale holds the desk plaque he received as Regional Star Farmer at competition in Springfield, Mass., recently.

Siegfried talks about star farmer competition

By JUDY MITCHELL
Berks Co. Reporter

MERTZTOWN - Dale Siegfried appears to be a man of few words, but his words were obviously well chosen when he came up against the intensive questioning of a panel of agriculture experts in Springfield, Mass., recently, to capture the title of 1976 Eastern Regional FFA State Star Farmer.

Home on the farm in Mertztown R2, the quiet, softspoken young man did not remember the 15-minute, rapidfire questioning of the seven judges as particularly unsettling Commenting on his experience in Springfield, he simply recalls that "it was fun"

Dale does not display the kind of outward agressiveness one might expect of a competitir, but rather a kind of quiet assurance. With that assurance goes a firm sense of responsibility and future direction.

Described as "industrious" by his former agriculture instructor,, Ben Newcomer, Dale has come a long way in farming since he enrolled in Vo-Ag the beginning of his ninth grade year at Kutztown Area High School. Having started with one dairy calf, three acres of corn, and a quarter-acre garden, Dale now runs a major farm operation which includes 16 head of breeding swine, 152 head of fat hogs, 13 head of fat cattle, and 59 turkeys. He has 12 acres in potatoes, 87 acres of corn grain, 51 acres of wheat, 16 acres of oats, and 15 acres of soybeans and wheat which was double cropped.

Asked what he thinks the officials look for first in a regional star farmer, Dale's immediate response is "record keeping." Although it's apparent by his tone that that particular aspect of farming is not exactly his favorite, Dale has earned a number of FFA honors for project bookkeeping, including a gold medal in the FFA State Record Book contest; and his diligence in the area of record keeping most certainly aided him in the submission of a 20 to 30 page application which preceeded his appearance in Springfield

Dale recalls that much of the questioning in Springfield centered on how he got started in farming and on his future goals.

According to Dale, his swine operation, Roadlet Farms Registered Yorkshires, began with a Sears Roebuck sponsored chain pig awarded him in 1972. In four years, he has turned that single animal into an efficient swine business that is currently the most important aspect of his total farm operation.

As for his future goals, Dale seems to know exactly where he is going. He already has primary responsibility for the operation and management of the Siegfried family farm and at the end of this year, when his parents move off the farm, he will take it over completely and eventually buy it from his parents, if his plans are completed.

Dale's active interest in FFA and community affairs together with the honors he has accummulated also influenced his recent victory, and he attributes his success and accomplishments to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul J. Siegfried, who have guided and directed him in managing the farm, and to his advisors at Kutztown, Mr. Donald W Reinert and Mr. Ben Newcomer, who greatly contributed to his knowledge and understanding of agriculture.

Support price increased

WASHINGTON, D C As of yesterday (October 1) the support price for manufacturing milk was increased to $8 26 per hundredweight

This increase of 13 cents per hundredweight will support milk prices for manufacturing purposes at approximately 80 per cent of parity The increase reflects the increased costs of dairy farming inputs, including feed, labor, equipment, and other items Also, the increase is needed by many dairymen in the mid-west and other areas who have experienced a dry growing season Unusually high amounts of feed and roughage will have to be purchased by these dairymen

It is expected that the increase in support level will have very minimal effects on consumer prices of dairy products Most dairy foods are selling in the commercial market at prices above the support level

Commodity Credit Corporation, which purchases excess supplies of dairy products, has announced a five cent increase for butter at New York, N Y , Jersey City, N J , and Secaucus, N J The price change will be from 87 75 cents per pound to 92 75 cents per pound Commodity Credit Corporation purchase prices for butter at other locations will be adjusted for freight costs, but in no case less than three cents per pound below the New York purchase price Purchase prices for extra grade non-fat dry milk remain unchanged from current prices of 62.40 and 63.40. Cheddar cheese (US Grade A) purchase price will be increased from 90.50 cents per pound to 92.50 cents per pound.

Lehigh Valley projects improvement

ALLENTOWN Pa - Lehigh Valley Cooperative Farmers announced this month its first profitable quarter in several years and projected a substantial reduction in losses for fiscal 1976

At the same time, Robert P Barry, president and general manager, reported successful completion of negotiations with Kraftco on agreement to terminate a long-term contract for production of base cheddar cheese effective Oct 1 The contract, negotiated by previous management, had proved unprofitable for Lehigh

Barry said that addition of three new, large customers for the dairy's base cheddar barrel cheese will more than offset the Kraftco business and place the cheese operation on a profitable basis The new customers are Borden; Northfield Cheese Company, food division of Kane-Miller Company of New York; and Clearfield Cheese Company, a division of H P. Hood Company of Boston.

Although Lehigh does not release quarterly earnings figures, Barry reported that the co-op made a profit for its second fiscal quarter, covering May, June, and July.

"We fully expect business to continue at the present level for the remainder of our fiscal year," Barry said. "However," he pointed out, "heavy losses incurred in February and March, primarily from cheese operations, jeopardizes the possibility of a full year's profitability "

Even if fiscal 1976 is not profitable, losses will still be cut substantially from the $1 85 million incurred in fiscal 1975, Barry stated This compares to a loss of almost $3 0 million in 1974, when Barry first took over management of the financially-beleaguered co-operative

Results for the second quarter represent a remarkable turnaround for Lehigh in the short span of two years This is attributed to a total reorganization of management, initiation of computerized cost control programs and production efficiencies, addition of several new items to the Lehigh product line, and expanded marketing efforts.

Barry revealed that several plant improvements aimed at increasing operating cost efficiency are currently underway and that increased marketing efforts in a highly profitable area of the dairy business will be launched in the near future.

Lehigh Valley is both a manufacturing and marketing cooperative, distributing a full line of dairy products in five states. The Cooperative represents 600 farmers and in 1975 processed over 390 million pounds of milk.

Sales in fiscal 1976 should reach the $100 million mark, Barry said.

Ortho dealers at seminar

LANCASTER - Willis Rohrer, Jerry Roman, Barney Berger, Ralph Garber, Henry Brenneman, Paul Campbell, and Ivan Bauman, of P L. Rohrer and Bro., Inc., here, were among 150 Ortho fertilizer dealers and dealer salesmen who participated in the recent intensive second annual Ortho Team Seminar '76 at Inn of the Fourwinds, Smithville, Indiana

These dealers and their representatives from a five-state area explored fertilizer problems and opportunities in a two-day idea-packed meeting sponsored by District 1 Chevron Chemical Company. They came from Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio and Pennsylvania

A combination of Chevron marketing and agronomy specialists teamed with economists from Purdue University, West Lafayette, Indiana, and Washington University, St. Louis, Missouri, to review crop, livestock, fertilizer, and credit outlook; and dealer motivation, incentives and sales techniques. Additionally, several Ortho fertilizer dealers presented case-history reports of successes in various administrative, marketing and production-processing aspects of their businesses.

District manager, Roy Tuttle, Toledo, Ohio, emphasized that the meeting is a valuable learning and communicating experience for both dealers and Chevron-Ortho management.

Ephrata garden tractor pulling contest draws large crowd

EPHRATA - The Ephrata Fair garden tractor pulling contest drew a large crowd of about 300-400 people on Thursday evening While the pull went well, there were few competitors Don Beidler, Leola, who was in charge of the event, was hoping for a larger turnout of entrants

"We're hoping for more inexperienced pullers for next year," said Beidler Inexperienced pullers entering competition means that more people have a chance at winning if they compete Whereas, if all entrants are experienced the titles go to just a few people

There is an 800 pound youth class for 8 - 12-year-olds which no one entered this year, and a novice class for the beginner

"You can take a tractor right out of the lawn for that one," says Beidler

My Thoughts and Welcome to Them

(With apologies to James Thurber)

Nothing exciting ever happens

There I was, standing in ankle deep mud in the hog tent at one of the fairs last month, with a slowly rising stream of water running through the middle of the tent, seeping into all the crevices between my shoes and boots, when all of a sudden a can tankerous hog decided to live up to his reputation "Look out," came the shout from up front, and everybody started dodging to get out of the way as the pig stormed around the tent Mud was flying, the hog was snorting, and I was scrambling as quickly as I could to get out of the way of the raving porker In a few minutes, everything was under control, including my heart, and the hog show continued undisturbed

A little later at the steer show I was concentrating on the events, when off to my left, a young girl let out with a scream that could have doubled as a fire siren A lazy steer had decided to lean up against her while she leaned up against the wall Needless to say, it was a tight situation and a slightly uncom fortable one at that It took only few seconds, however, for experienced farmers to move the steer and solve the problem That is, until a show steer decided to run rampant through the crowd Again, it was a scramble and a mad dash to get to safety, which, fortunately, I was expert at by now

When the disturbance had abated, I looked up to find another chicken just like myself cowering in a safe spot not far away We looked at each other with total understanding "You know," he said with an expressionless face, "nothing exciting ever happens around here"

Archery season begins

HARRISBURG, Pa. - Pennsylvania's 1976-77 hunting seasons for big game will get underway when archers begin hunting whitetail deer one-half hour before sunrise today.

More than one-fourth of all of the nation's archery hunters purchase licenses in Pennsylvania. Last year, there were a record 215,727 archery licenses sold in the state, an increase of about 13,000 over the preceding year.

During the 1975-76 seasons archers reported harvesting a record 5,061 deer in Pennsylvania. The Keystone State again has a large herd of whitetails in 1976.

There will be 24 hunting days during the regular statewide archery deer season which closes on October 29, one day before the opening of the general small game season. Sunday hunting is prohibited.

An extended 18-day archery deer season is scheduled to begin on December 27 and to end on January 15.

Use of bow and arrow is also permitted during the regular antlered and antlerless seasons in late November and December.

Archers are permitted to take one deer of either sex, regardless of size. If a hunter bags a deer during the archery season, he is not permitted to take another whitetail during the regular gunning season. Hunting hours for bowmen are from one-half hour before sunrise until sunset.

In addition to a regular resident or non-resident hunting license, an archery license is required to hunt deer with bow and arrow during the archery seasons. Archery licenses are available from county treasurers, archery license issuing agents, or by mail only from the Pennsylvania Game Commission, License Section, P. O. Box 1567, Harrisburg, Pa. 17120. An archery license costs $2.20.

Layer production up

HARRISBURG - Pennsylvania layers produced 249 million eggs during August, down one per cent from the previous month and six per cent below a year earlier, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service.

The August average of 12.4 million layers was up one per cent from the previous month, but six per cent below a year earlier.

Egg production per 100 layers during August totaled 2,003 eggs, down two per cent from the previous month, but approximately the same as a year ago.

The nationa's laying flocks produced 5.4 billion eggs during August, slightly below both the previous month and a year ago. Layers on hand during August averaged 272 million, up two per cent from the previous month and about the same as a year earlier. The average rate of lay was the same as a year ago.

E-Town Fair exhibits grow by 300 per cent

ELIZABETHTOWN The Elizabethtown Community Festival was a surprise to several people involved Mrs Sara Myer, chairperson of the Market Place Fair reported that the amount of exhibits in the Market Place tent grew by nearly 300 per cent

"I'm really proud of the exhibits this year," she said as she pointed out the well organized, lovely display of flowers, vegetables, canned goods, and other horticultural exhibits

The amount of outside stands also grew from previous years And, this year, there was a totally new added extra - an FFA tent In that tent were two goats, two sheep, a mare and a colt, a sow and her litter, two steers, and a heifer

"We hope to have state funding in two years," Mrs Myers said. If they pass the state test this year, they will have only one more year of state tests to go and funding will be available. If the funding does go through, the Jaycees have hopes of possbily buying land and getting some permanent buildings. At present, they rent the land from the Elizabethtown College.

Bill Shuker, president of the Jaycees, also noted that the organization would really like to make the Fair a community event.

The first place results of the exhibit judging were as follows:

Now that America is coming back to solid fuel heat Americans are coming back to Shenandoah and the R 76. And while the concept of a wood heater is basically basic the R 76 takes it a step further with a thermostatically controlled airtight chamber that makes you warm and a nine inch firebrick liner that keeps you that way. Plus a baked-on porcelain cabinet and all the other basic features that make wood heaters nice to come home to. And heating bills nice to get away from.

Farm Bureau president critical of Jimmy Carter's labor stand

PARK RIDGE, Ill - "After months of beating around the bushes on support for the United Farm Worker's farm labor program, Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter has finally fallen into them " So charged American Farm Bureau Federation president Allan Grant here last month

Grant said Carter's recent endorsement of UFW's California farm labor initiative - known as Proposition No 14 - 'ends a lot of hemming and hawing but raises serious questions about Jimmy Carter's credibility "

Grant charged that the UFW measure Carter endorsed in a telephone message of September 5, to UFW's Fresno convention would, if enacted by the voters on November 2, "sabotage present farm labor legislation in California over which the state legislature has worked for months, and under which thousands of farm workers have voted their choices "

And, Grant noted, the UFW measure would

-Accord union organizers blanket access to farm properties

-Require farm employers to turn over a list of their employees to a union without any verification that they sought representation

-Permit treble damages to be levied against farmers for unfair labor practices alleged by a politically-appointed farm labor board, ("a measure of flagrant intimidation against farmers who might contest procedures or rulings of the board," Grant charged)

-Require a showing of 50 per cent of a work force to petition for an election to replace a union; (instead of the standard 30 per cent under the present state law, and under precedent of the National Labor Relations Act).

-Establish mandatory funding without specific limitation; ("an utterly irresponsible system of blank-check financing," Grant charged)

"Neither can Jimmy Carter plead unfamiliarity with Proposition No 14," Grant said He noted that he had explained its ramifications to Carter last April, after the candidate had given it friendly reference at a Los Angeles convention

"We have learned that the candidate has chosen to endorse Proposition No 14, and the Chavez movement, as a simple if cynical appeal for the support of those favorable to them, as against the clear interests of farmers," Grant said

"It should be no comfort to anyone," he concluded, "that when Jimmy Carter has finally taken a firm stand somewhere - it is to stand with Cesar Chavez "

Snowmobile reminder:

HARRISBURG - The Snowmobile Unit of the Department of Environmental Resources reminds that Pennsylvania youths, 10 to 15 years of age, must complete a safety training program before they can legally operate a snowmobile this winter.

Mrs Doris M. Thompson, snowmobile administrator, said the law, in effect since April, 1976, applies to the use of snowmobiles on all lands in Pennsylvania except properties owned by the rider's parents or guardians.

The course, she explained, is eight hours long and students who successfully complete the program are issued a safety training certificate.

To determine who the local instructor is, the youths may contact the Department of Environmental Resources, Snowmobile Unit, P.O. Box 1467, Harrisburg, Pa 17120 The telephone number is (717) 783-1364

Mrs Thompson also announced that additional volunteer instructors are needed to carry out the safety training program throughout the State this year. Course materials will be provided by the Snowmobile Unit and additional information may be obtained by contacting the Unit at the above address.

Pork Poundage

When analyzing the price of pork, it's important to remember that a hog is not all pork chops An average hog today dresses out to about 70 per cent of its live weight Retail cuts sold in the meat case add up to about 80 per cent of this carcass weight

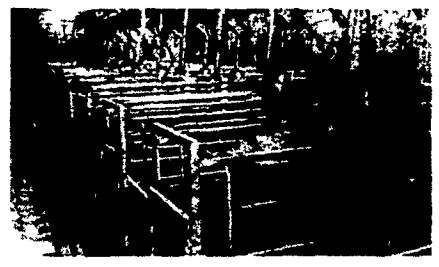
NORTHCO HOG SYSTEMS

Properly managed Northco systems produce top quality hogs profitably with a minimum of labor. All components of a Northco confinement system are designed to deliver maximum returns on the investment you put into swine production.



Farrowing

Northco Farrowing systems provide complete control over sow and litter. All crates are ruggedly constructed to deliver years of service. Special pig brooders target "zone heat" into the little pig area.

Finishing

Feed delivery is automatic yet the amount for each pen can be regulated separately. Pen partitions are sturdy and designed to aid in cleanliness. Northco's ventilation system draws fresh air from sidewall intakes, while exhausting warm humid air through roof exhaust ventilation units.

Reminder:

HARRISBURG - Antlerless deer license applications will be accepted from Pennsylvania resident hunters beginning on October 4, under rules and regulations adopted by the Game Commission.

Basically, guidelines established in the last several years for receiving applications and for issuing antlerless deer licenses will be followed in 1976.

This year, there will be 440,350 antlerless deer licenses available in Pennsylvania, compared to 421,300 authorized last year.

TO MINISTER THE SICK.....

And it came to pass, as Jesus sat at meat in the house, behold, many publicans and sinners came and sat down with him and his disciples.

And when the Pharisees saw it, they said unto his disciples, Why eateth your Master with publicans and sinners?

But when Jesus heard that, he said unto them, They that be whole need not a physician, but they that are sick.

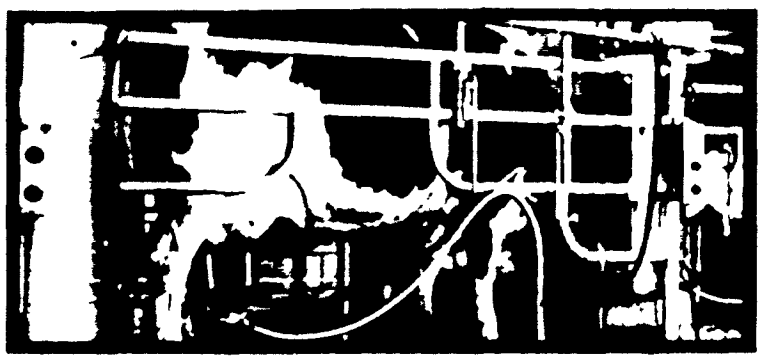
PRODUCTION DOESN'T HAVE TO LEVEL OFF WHEN CONSUMPTION REACHES ITS PEAK.



Energy is the key

Your dairy cows may be getting all the feed they want. But are they getting the nutrition they need? Even at peak consumption, there's still a way to get more out of your herd. Master Mix® Research found that a high energy dairy ration can significantly increase daily production even at peak consumption Extra energy increases the pounds of milk produced and raises the percentage of butterfat.

Enter Density Plus™

After extensive testing, Master Mix Research developed dairy feeds that supply the extra energy that's so vital to increased production. They're called Density Plus and they pack more energy per pound than any other commercial dairy feeds.

Density Plus is really "Energy Plus"

You've seen that extra energy is important But the Density Plus story doesn't end there Master Mix® fortified Density Plus feeds with vitamins and minerals to keep your herd in top condition.

Since Density Plus feeds are pelleted, the availability of the nutrients within the feeds is improved.

It works!

If you haven't tried Density Plus you still might be skeptical. But if you asked any one of the thousands of dairymen across the country who use Density Plus, you'd probably be sold on Density Plus. Most of the Density Plus dairymen we know are getting more milk on less feed.

Of course, the amount of milk you produce depends on many factors. But all things being equal, it's a pretty safe bet that Density Plus will work for you.

Visit your local Master Mix Dealer and get all the facts about Density Plus. He'll tell you how you can "energize" your dairy herd.

MUELLER FRE-HEATER™

EXPLANATION OF THE REVOLUTIONARY NEW MUELLER "FRE-HEATER™" FOR THE DAIRY FARM

Bulk milk coolers on modern dairy farms remove heat from the milk promptly after it is produced To accomplish this requires refrigeration machines and they are generally of the air-cooled type Air-cooled condensing units literally "throw away" this valuable heat.

On these same farms, large amounts of hot water are needed for "prepping" the cows, washing the milk cooler, the pipeline milker, other equipment, and the milking parlor itself. It is also advantageous to heat the cows' drinking water in winter

The Mueller Fre-Heater conserves energy and provides "free" hot water by capturing the heat now wasted!

HERE'S HOW IT WORKS:

Rather than using noisy, dust-creating fans with fragile, dirt collecting air-cooled condensers, the refrigerant is routed to a specially designed condenser/heat exchanger and its heat is transferred to the water

A thermostatically controlled valve delivers 145° F water to the storage tank

In addition to the thermostatic valve, a mixing valve is provided to permit "prepping" temperature water

Thus, the Fre-Heater delivers two temperatures of water — prepping and washing

Tests indicate the Fre-Heater consumes 10% less power than an air-cooled system . . . and you get Free Hot Water!

ELIMINATES REFRIGERATION SERVICE PROBLEMS!

The most common causes of slow cooling in bulk milk cooling systems are related to the air-cooled condenser

Three things which frequently reduce the efficiency are 1 Poor air circulation and recirculation
2. Fan motor failures
3 Dirty or clogged condenser fins

Air-cooled condensing units are generally installed out of doors in order to assure adequate air supply to the condenser. This exposes the compressor to extreme ambient temperatures Starting problems and compressor failures have resulted and air-cooled condenser units are always noisy

The Fre-Heater eliminates these problems because:

- There is no air-cooled condenser
- The Fre-Heater is installed indoors
- There are no fans to generate noise.
- The head pressure is very stable — assuring longer compressor life
- There are no cold weather starting problems, plus

. . . the Fre-Heater conserves energy and produces Free Hot Water!

Save Energy and get FREE HOT WATER... with the revolutionary...

Facts for dairymen

By Alan Bair

Sampling For Forage Testing

Some dairymen do not use forage testing because they feel that samples taken will not be sufficiently representative of their supply Field or farm difference and dependency on purchased hay are some of the factors which often concern them

During a recent visit with Dick Adams at Penn State's Forage Testing Laboratory he indicated that these fears or excuses for not testing are not substantiated by observations of tests obtained from farms where forages have been sampled at almost monthly intervals. Suprprisingly little variation occurred among major types or cuttings of forage in a given year. Even more surprising, shipments of purchased hay did not vary appreciably.

Forage analysis and feed programming can be a useful tool even on farms covering large acreages and those purchasing forage. It enables closer balancing of rations compared to the use of average analysis or general feeding guides. This may result in improved animal performance and or decreased feed costs.

Hay samoles may be taken as soon as the hay is low enough in moisture to keep safely without artificial curing Corn silage samples may be taken at ensiling or feeding out Samples should not be taken at ensigling unless the moisture level is sufficiently low toprevent appreciable seepage

Samples of silage other than corn should be taken only at feeding out This makes possible adjustments in feeding value, due to heat damage which may have occurred during ensiling

Both standard analysis and mineral tests should be obtained in most cases Sulfur tests should be obtained periodically. Nitrate and NPN tests should be reserved for problem situtests should be reserved for problem situations in most instances.

Legume or mixed mainly legume forages should be sampled separately from grass or mixed mainly grass forage. First-cutting forage should be sampled separately from aftermath cuttings which may be combined. Each silo of material should be sampled on large farms. More than one sample should be submitted from extremely large silos.

WATER WATCHER

PUT A RITCHIE FOUNTAIN IN CHARGE OF YOUR HERD'S WATER.

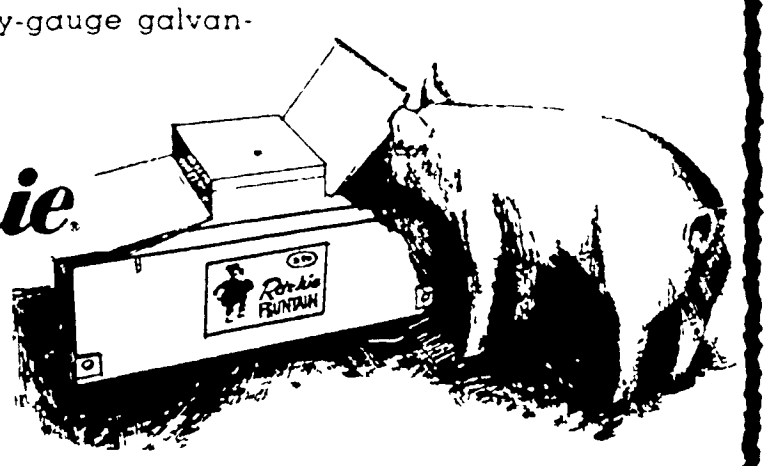
Ritchie fountains keep plenty of water in front of your cows day in day out automatically

Big-throat rust-free valves dish it out fast, and Ritchie's reliable heating system keeps water ice-free on the coldest winter days

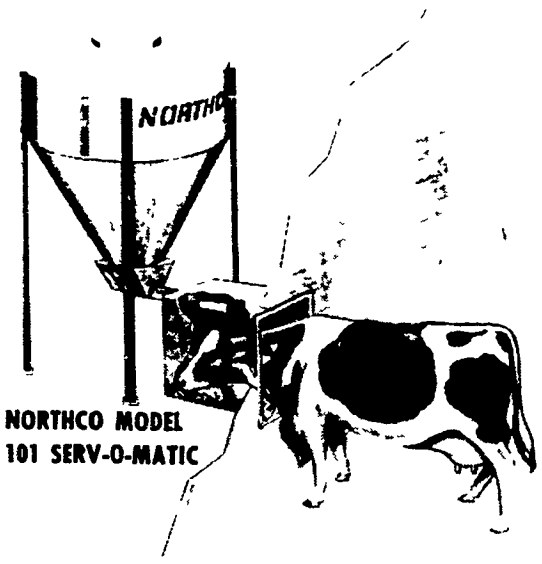
With the CD-50 epoxy finish over heavy-gauge galvanized steel, Ritchie Fountain will stand up to years of abuse from livestock and weather

Why take chances on an old watering system? There's a Ritchie fountain that's right for your operation See your local dealer

Relax... Ritchie waters 'em right.



NORTHCO
Serv-O-Matic Dairy Feeder



NORTHCO MODEL 101 SERV-O-MATIC

Northco Model 201 Serv-O-Matic

The "Magnet Feeder" That Selectively Feeds Concentrate or High Moisture Corn

The Model 101 Serv-O-Matic may be mounted through the wall in a loose housing system or through the fenceline for open lots. Side braces are also provided for mounting and installation.

The feeder opening is designed to permit only one cow to eat at a time. A 2 inch auger drops approximately 1 lb. of concentrate per minute into the feeder . . . this is the same rate the cow eats . . . no feed remains in the feeder when she moves away.

A simple magnet around the cow's neck will activate the feeder motor as she places her head into the feeder. Cows without a magnet are unable to get feed.

The Model 201 Serv-O-Matic is specially designed for moving high moisture corn. The augers provide a mixing motion as they move the corn from the 10 bushel hoppers, which has adequate capacity to provide extra rations to 20 or 30 cows.

Dairy figures compared

Twenty-five years ago the average dairyman shipping milk to Inter-State Milk Producers Cooperative, Philadelphia, produced 344 pounds per day, compared to 1700 pounds today

Last year the average dairyman shipping to Inter-State grossed $65,000 on milk sales, compared to $6717 a quarter of a century ago

Milk prices, which are now well over $10 per hundredweight, stood at $5 34 in 1951.

Conservation programs begun

WASHINGTON, D. C. - The U.S. Department of Agriculture activated a $190 million 1977 Agricultural Conservation program on October 1 which will be operating in all agricultural counties.

"The objective of ACP is to encourage enduring soil and water conservation practices on farmland, and is aimed at those farmers who cannot undertake these conservation practices without some economic assistance," Claude Hetherington, chairman of the Pennsylvania State Committee, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, USDA, said.

Farmer-elected county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committees have full authority in identifying critical farm conservation problems and developing local plans for solving them on a priority basis.

Hetherington said, "The delegation of authority to County ASC Committees places decision-making in the hands of local farmers who are in the best possible position to evaluate local conservation needs and priorities. We are pleased with the past performance of the ASC committees and are sure that they will continue to provide good service to farmers."

ACP provides up to 75 per cent of the cost of carrying out approved soil, water, and woodland conservation practices. All approved practices in effect under the 1970 National ACP are eligible.

"USDA also announced the 1977 funding for the Forestry Incentives Program at the $15 million level authorized by Congress FIP is designed to increase the production of timber products on small, private timber tracts and will be available in most states in specifically-designated counties with high resource potential for increased timber production. Pennsylvania, with its many thousands of acres of woodland, will have most counties participating," chairman Hetherington said.

ACP, FIP, and WB are administered by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Full details will be announced later by County ASC Committees.

Maryland Angus show held

GAITHERSBURG, Md. - Maryland Angus Breeders held their 1976 Show here at the Montgomery County Fairgrounds, this summer. Judge of the event was Donald Kniffen, Rutgers University. Sixty-eight head of Angus cattle were shown.

Charles Papa's Hillside Lake Farm of Hagerstown scored a double win as his two year old, Wye Ankonian of HSL was named grand champion bull of the show and Blackbird Burgess HSL was named grand champion female. This same farm showed the reserve junior champion bull and both bulls are by Form of Wye and out of the same dam, Georginas Elevate HSL, as was the first place late sr. bull calf. The junior champion bull was also by Form of Wye and was shown by Mary Frances Sweeney of Gaithersburg.

Calf champion and reserve grand champion bull was BHA Amazon Pride, shown by William Gregg and Sons' Black Haven Angus, Gaithersburg, who also showed the intermediate champion bull. Reserve bull calf champion was shown by Branchwater Farms, Inc., Owings Mills, who also showed the reserve heifer calf champion. Reserve grand champion female was the heifer calf champion, Oatland Erica 804, shown by Chandler Keys, Olney, who also showed the reserve junior champion female. both by Montague of Wye.

Reserve senior champion bull was shown by Moreland Farm, Brookeville; intermediate champion female by Susan Holston, Derwood; and reserve intermediate champion female by Robert Miller, Woodsboro.

The show was sponsored by the Maryland Angus Association and trophies were presented by Wye Plantation, Queenstown, Md. and the Maryland Angus Association.

PAFC award given

David Putney, a Harrisburg attorney known for his work with farmer cooperatives, was presented with the Pennsylvania Association of Farmer Cooperatives (PAFC) award last month.

David Putney

The PAFC award is given annually to a Pennsylvania resident who has demonstrated outstanding leadership in improving farmer cooperatives and allied industries.

He has been a practicing attorney in Harrisburg, since 1932 and is a former assistant district attorney from Dauphin County, Pa. He was general counsel for the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau Cooperative Association and has served as counsel for Agway Inc., Syracuse, N. Y., Atlantic Breeders, Lancaster, Pa., and 14 other cooperative associations.

Putney was one of the draftsmen for revisions of laws relating to farmer cooperatives.

Nature's fireworks explained

By DIETER KRIEG

EDITOR'S NOTE - This is the eighth report on the forces which shape our weather.

"Whoooooooo," my little 2-year old son exclaims excitedly when he sees a flash of lightning in the sky "Look at that!" A bit frightened, but still fascinated, his 4-year old brother joins him and watches Nature's fireworks "See the big light, Daddy?" the older one might ask, while the little fellow points his little fingers towards the sky and says "big noise" A thunderstorm - lightning and thunder - is indeed Nature's most awesome aerial show. While it's fascinating to a degree, to most of us it has always been something more than that. Usually it's frightful, and why not. Lightning brings on more destruction each year than either hurricanes or tornadoes and an average of 150 Americans are killed by it annually. And then there are the barns and houses which are ignited by it, and livestock that's killed.

Understanding lightning is not easy, the experts admit, but they do offer some theories. Last week's "Weather Report" told of how the forces of Nature are at work to produce the 100 million volts which are involved in a massive thunderbolt being released. This week an explanation is offered as to how that electrical current leaps from cloud to ground, or cloud to cloud, or ground to cloud. The information which follows comes directly from a publication issued by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, Washington, D.C.

"Lightning occurs when the difference between the positive and negative charges—the electrical potential—becomes great enough to overcome the resistance of the insulating air, and to force a conductive path for current to flow between the two charges. Potential in these cases can be as much as 100 million volts. Lightning strokes represent a flow of current from negative to positive (in most cases), and may proceed from cloud to cloud, cloud to ground, or, where high structures are involved, from ground to cloud".

"The typical cloud-to-ground stroke we see most frequently begins as a pilot leader, too faint to be visible, advances downward from the cloud, and sets up the initial portion of the stroke path. A surge of current called a step leader follows the pilot, moving 100 feet or more at a time toward the ground, pausing, then repeating the sequence until the conductive path of electrified (ionized) particles is near the ground. There, discharge streamers extending from the ground intercept the leader path and complete the conductive channel between ground and cloud charges. When this path is complete, a return stroke leaps upward at speeds approaching that of light, illuminating the branches of the descending leader track. Because these tracks point downward, the stroke appears to come from the cloud. The bright light of the return stroke is the result of glowing atoms and molecules of air energized by the stroke."

"Once the channel has been established and the return stroke has ended, dart leaders from the cloud initiate secondary returns, until the opposing charges are dissipated or the channel is gradually broken up by air movement. Even when luminous lightning is not visible, current may continue to flow along the ionized channel set up by the initial step leader."

"Ground-to-cloud discharges are less frequently observed than the familiar cloud-to-ground stroke. In these cases, step leaders generally proceed from a tall conductive or semiconductive structure to the clouds; the initial leader stroke is not followed by a return stroke from the cloud, possible because charges are less mobile in the cloud than in the highly conducting earth. Once the conductive path is established, however, current flow may set up cloud-to-ground sequences of dart leaders and returns."

"Thunder is the crash and rumble associated with lightning, and is caused by explosive expansion of air heated by the stroke. When lightning is close by, the thunder is a sharp explosive sound. More distant strokes produce the familiar growl and rumble of thunder, a result of sound being refracted and modified by the turbulent environment of a thunderstorm. Because the speed of light is about a million times that of sound, the distance (in miles) to a lightning stroke can be estimated by counting the number of seconds between lightning and thunder, and dividing by five."

"Lightning comes in many forms. Streak lightning, a single or multiple line from cloud to ground, is the form seen most frequently. Forked lightning shows the conductive channel. Sheet lightning is a shapeless flash covering a broad area, often seen cloud-to-cloud discharges. Heat lightning is seen along the horizon during hot weather, and is believed to be the reflection of lightning occurring beyond the horizon. Ribbon lightning is streak lightning whose conductive channel is moved by high winds, making successive strokes seem to parallel one another. Beaded lightning appears as an interrupted stroke."

"Ball lightning is in some ways the most interesting—and most controversial—form. As reported, ball lightning appears as a luminous globe, toroid (doughnut-shape), or ellipsoid which hisses as it hurtles from cloud to earth, maneuvers at high speeds, rolls along structures, or hangs suspended in the air."

"The electromagnetic impulses of a lightning stroke produce whistlers—gliding tones which travel along lines of force in the earth's magnetic field from their lightning source in one hemisphere to a similar point in the opposite hemisphere, often echoing back and forth several times. Their sound is something like the whistle of World War II bombs, occasionally modified in a way that produces musical variations."

"The dual character of lightning—it is a carrier of high currents and produces destructive thermal effects—makes it doubly dangerous. The current peaks, which may reach magnitudes of 200,000 amperes or more, produce forces which have a crushing effect upon conductors, and which can build to explosive levels in nonconducting or semiconducting materials like wood or brick. The continuous current produces heat, and is responsible for the numerous fires attributed to lightning."

Member Chosen

OLEY, Pa. - Scott Alan Hauseman, Oley, was recently granted a junior membership in the Brown Swiss Cattle Breeders' Association of America. According to National Secretary Marvin L. Kruse of Beloit, Wis., junior memberships give boys and girls who have had their ninth birthday before January 1 of the current calendar year, and who have not had their 19th birthday before this base date, the privilege of registering individually owned offspring from Brown Swiss females at national membership rates.

The national secretary reports that Brown Swiss registrations have shown an increase each year for the past four years. He states that the reason for this growth is that Brown Swiss have a wide range of adaptation and produce a large volume of market milk high in protein. He adds that registered Brown Swiss offer a challenge to a dairyman's abilities and provide a greater return on his investment in time, labor, and money.

Three Pennsylvania counties ready

Prime farmland mapped, explained

HARRISBURG - The first of hundreds of county maps to show locations of the nation's "prime farmland" has been published by the Soil Conservation Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture The map is of Peach County, Georgia, one of 122 counties in 48 states being inventoried this year for a nationwide "important farmlands inventory." In Pennsylvania, prime and unique lands have been identified in three counties - Adams, Columbia and Erie. Maps are now being prepared for these counties.

Most of these counties have been under intense pressure from urban development. An additional 154 counties have been selected for inventory in 1977.

Pennsylvania counties to be mapped in 1977 include Bucks, Philadelphia, Chester, Delaware, Montgomery, Berks and Lancaster.

The agency hopes to complete inventories and publish colored maps for each of the 1200 counties, or more than one-third of the nation, by 1980.

Prime farmland, for purposes of the SCS inventory, is that land best suited for producing food, feed, forage, fiber and oil seed crops. Farmland already converted to urban uses or highways is not considered prime farmland, even though it may have been at some earlier time. Technical criteria for identification of prime farmland are based on soil characteristics

The county by county survey will provide the detailed information needed to support new department policy to help keep the nation's best farmland, range and forest lands from going into nonagricultural uses.

USDA has urged all federal agencies to adopt the policy that federal activities that take prime farmland should be carried out only when there are no suitable alternative sites and when the activities meet an overriding public need

Many state, county and municipal officials and planning agencies share USDA's concern for preservation of prime farmlands and are expected to find the maps useful in making their own land use decisions

SCS estimates that 250 million acres of U. S. lands presently in croplands are prime farmland. That is about two-thirds of the present cropland acreage. Some 24 million additional acres of prime farmland not now being used for crops could be converted to cropland simply by beginning tillage. Other prime farmland already has been committed to such use as high density forest, wildlife areas, farmsteads, and farm roads.

Of prime farmlands still available for future cropland use, a sizeable bite is taken each year by urban expansion. Another bite goes under water for lakes and reservoirs. Still more acres are "leap-frogged" by suburbs that build some distance from urban centers. Leap-frogged acres seem destined eventually to be urbanized unless legislative action is taken to keep them in farming, according to the conservation agency.

Each county map published by SCS will show the location of prime farmland, additional farmland of statewide or local importance and unique farmland The latter are those acres particularly well suited for growing a specific crop of high value, such as grapes in Erie County and fruit in Adams County.

Each inventory is being conducted by SCS field personnel and appropriate state officials using completed soil surveys as the basis of the inventory.

Support urged

HARRISBURG - Secretary of Agriculture Raymond J. Kerstetter last week urged Pennsylvania dairymen shipping milk to the Federal Order 4 (Middle Atlantic) marketing area to support a referendum calling for a seven-cent per hundredweight checkoff to support milk advertising and promotion.

"Such an increase for the present five-cent rate is necessary to maintain the level of present milk promotion activities at the national and local level," Kerstetter said. "Like everything else, the cost of advertising and promotion is going up. Failure to keep in step will mean that vitally important milk promotion will slide backward from want of funds. Only by maintaining a high level of fluid milk consumption can dairymen hope to obtain a favorable blend price."

Kerstetter made the recommendation at the urging of the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Advisory Council, made up of representatives of the leading farmer organizations and milk cooperatives.

The Council pointed out that the U. S. Department of Agriculture has recommended amending the rate of deduction from five to seven cents as the result of a public hearing requested by four cooperative members of the Penmarva Dairymen's Federation, Inc.

The advertising and promotion program conducted with the deducted funds is voluntary in that each producer, on a quarterly basis, may request a refund of the money withheld from his pool proceeds.

If this referendum fails, there will be no checkoff for milk promotion. Another referendum must be held to revert to the five-cent checkoff.

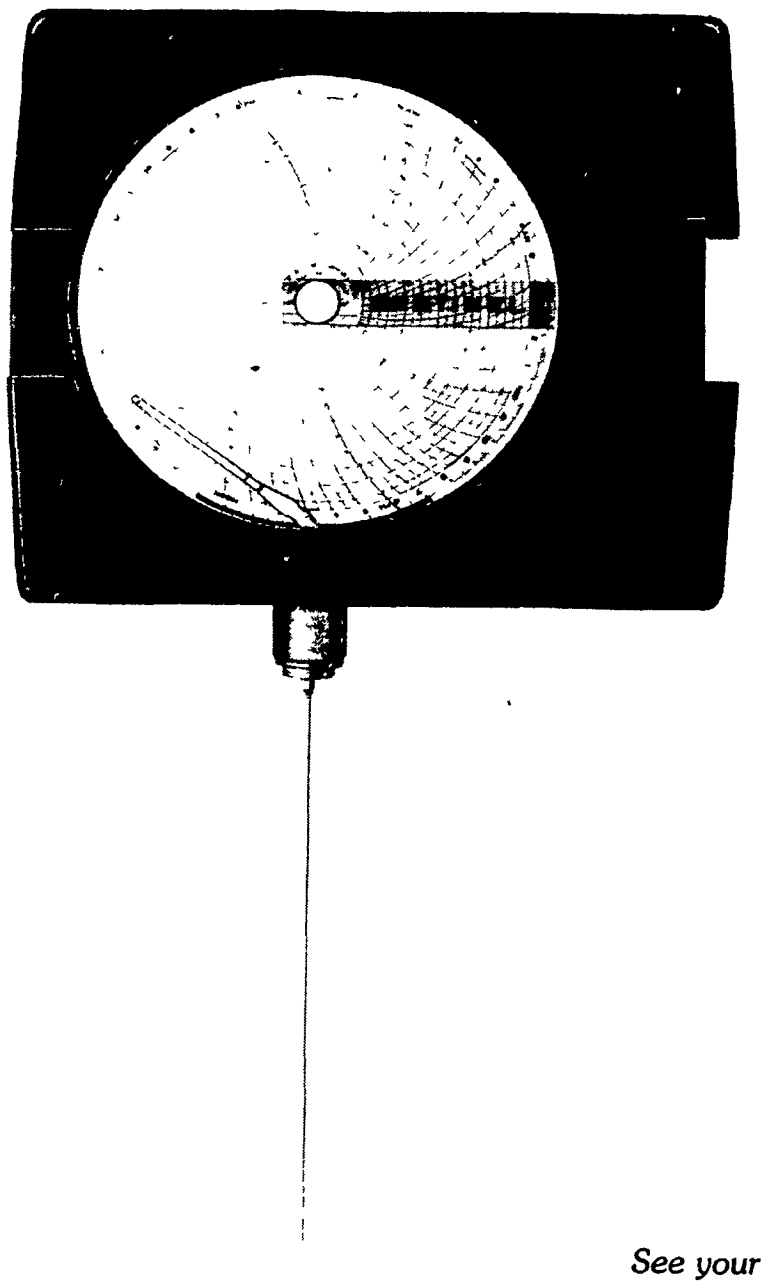
THE SENTINEL



Round-the-clock guardian of stored milk temperature

If you depend upon your milk check for a living, protect that income by insuring milk quality.

The least expensive, single-payment insurance obtainable is the Sentinel — the heavy-duty, 10-inch recorder which charts round-the-clock temperature of your milk-cooling or holding tank.

Assure yourself — and your processor — that proper milk temperature is always maintained.

Keep a permanent log of compressor operation and tank cooling or pre-cooling efficiency, from first filling to pickup.

Cleaning temperatures — increasingly questioned by sanitarians — are recorded on the same chart.

At little added cost, the Sentinel is available with provision for actuating an alarm or warning light if milk holding temperature rises above pre-set level.

Remember — if it prevents the loss of only one tank of milk, the Sentinel has paid its own way.

CUSTOM FORMULATION TO IM-PRUV-ALL MINERAL AND VITAMIN NUTRITION

Feed testing to achieve proper balancing of livestock rations is essential to profitable milk and meat production Minerals and vitamins must be present in adequate amounts and in proper balance of efficiently utilize these balanced rations Whenever a feeding ration is changed, a new and distinct formulation is needed to provide adequate mineral and vitamin nutrition

Many problems of animal production, breeding, and health result from an imbalance of minerals and vitamins Ration requirements vary for different kinds and sizes of livestock Through a Custom Formulation, based on the present livestock ration and animal requirements, the proper level and balance of these essential nutrients can be achieved. Normally, underfeeding or overfeeding of minerals and vitamins reduces the efficient utilization of the ration which costs more money than the minerals and vitamins needed to balance the ration. A Custom Formultion to Im-Pruv All Mineral and Vitamin nutritbon formulates for each specific feeding ration and considers the requirements of the animals being fed [including health and breeding problems] It is a custom, computerized formulation that truly informs a livestock feeder of those minerals and vitamins his animals need to get efficient feed utilization and production

This program has been developed over a seven year period. Thousands of cattle have been fed minerals and vitamins on a custom formula basis. It is well recognized and documented that these nutrients must be present in proper amounts in livestock rations A Custom Formulation to Im-Pruv-All Mineral and Vitamin Nutritbon will consider each of the nutrients listed below Following are some of the problems of animal health and production that can occur from overfeeding or underfeeding of these essential nutrients An extreme shortage or excess of any of these can cause acute illness or death.

Nutrient	Shortage	Excess
Calcium	Poor bone development, restricted growth and production, tetany.	Poor phosphorus utilization, milk fever, decreased trace element utilization
Phosphorus	Decreased appetite; stiff joints; weak heat periods; poor feed utilization and production	Creates calcium deficiency, urinary calculi
Magnesium	Tetany; nervousness.	Similar to excess calcium
Potassium	Restricts growth and production; dehydration.	Tetany; diarrhea.
Sodium [salt]	Dehydration; reduced feed intake.	Excessive water intake; diarrhea.
Sulfur	Poor protein utilization; poor hair coat.	Effects copper utilization.
Manganese	Impaired growth, low conception rates, poor energy utilization.	Staggers; muscular weakness; weak sex drive
Copper	Anemia; poor conception, faded hair; weak offspring; poor bone development	Liver damage; kidney damage [bloody urine].
Cobalt	Depraved appetite; unthrifty anemia; fatty liver.	Blood cell imbalance; loss of weight; depraved appetite.
Zinc	Reproduction problem; rough hair coat; skin diseases.	Creates copper deficiency.
Iron	Respiratory problems, anemia; fatigue; listlessness.	Poor utilization of other trace elements; watery eyes; reduces gains and production.
Molybdenum	Decreased fiber digestion; similar to copper toxicity.	Diarrhea; created copper deficiency; causes weight loss.
Iodine	Goiter or big neck, dead offspring; low production.	Runny nose; irritability; bloody diarrhea; skin disorders.
Vitamin A	Runny eyes; blindness; skin diseases; irregular heat periods; abortions.	Fragile bones; swelling of joints; loss of hair.
Vitamin D	Poor calcium and phosphorus uptake; milk fever.	Diarrhea; thirst; soft hooves and bones.
Vitamin E	Reproductive failure; prolonged gestation; weak or dead offspring; milk flavor.	None known.
Vitamin K	Internal bleeding; hemorrhage.	Excessive blood clotting.

A Custom Formulation to Im-Pruv-All Mineral and Vitamin Nutrition gives our customers the knowledge and tools to more profitably feed the proper minerals and vitamins to their livestock.

Rail judges scored

HARRISBURG - Dairy cattle were not the only animals being judged during the week-long Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show held this week at the Farm Show Building in Harrisburg "Railbird judging" also shared the spotlight

You may wonder what is a railbird judge? They exist in all spectator sports but are known by different names In football, they're the Monday morning quarterbacks and in baseball they are grandstand managers

Although dairy show managers select only the top internationally-acclaimed judges, there are always breeders and herdsmen who think they are better This is, at best, an immodest attitude, as the judges for this year's All-American came from New York, Wisconsin, Ohio, Indiana, Virginia, Massachusetts and Iowa

Every day, during the judging in the main arena, judges selected four of the top cows in a class Interested railbirds then had an opportunity to place these animals in their proper order Railbird judges cards were collected and graded, with the first, second and third place railbird judges receiving trophies This does not necessarily prove that railbirds are better than the judges, but the winners found new respect for the judges The losers, of course, screamed "We was robbed!"

Officers installed

Millions Celebrate 4-H Week

UNIVERSITY PARK, PA - More than five million young people across the country will celebrate National 4-H Week on Oct 3-9 In special observances keyed to the theme, "4-H - Room To Grow," they'll be taking a close look at opportunities for growth in 4-H

4-H'ers have a proud heritage The 4-H movement began around the turn of the century and grew out of a need to make education more practical and interesting to farm youth The first 4-H projects, corn clubs for boys and canning clubs for girls - offered enriching, real-life learning experiences not provided by rural schools of the era

Projects have changed through the years as the faces of 4-H'ers have changed But the basic "learn by doing" concept still holds and has wide appeal Today s 4-H members take part in activities that range from animal care to environmental improvement to photography and bicycle care and safety Although 4-H continues to serve the needs of rural youth, it has also grown in the more populated areas 37 per cent of 4-H members live in cities, twons, and suburbs And 4-H'ers come from all racial, ethnic, and socio-economic backgrounds

About 120,000 Pennsylvania 4-H members are joining this week's observance which includes over 3,000 from Lancaster County These young people are directing their energies and talents toward building a better tomorrow

Each member is involved in one or more projects for which he or she alone is responsible Although members receive counsel and guidance from parents, volunteer adult leaders, and Extension staff members, the value of the finished projects is up to the individual. The "learn by doing" concept carried out in dozens of project areas illustrates the 4-H way of preparing youth for tomorrow

Good citizenship is one of 4-H's goals A member learns to be a good citizen by being one Members have a chance, through 4-H citizenship projects, to contribute to America before they are voting age.

National 4-H Week is a good time to check into the opportunities the 4-H program can offer. The Extension Service is your local 4-H information center.

Dairy supports raised

WASHINGTON, D C - Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz has announced that the support price for manufacturing milk will be increased to $8 26 per hundredweight on October 1, 1976 This level of support is estimated to be 80 per cent of parity on this date

The decision to increase the support price was made after a review of the dairy price support situation. On March 3, 1976, when the support price for manufacturing milk was set at $8.13 per hundredweight, effective April 1, it was announced that the support level would be subject to quarterly review and adjusted if necessary to assure an adequate supply of milk The support price of $8.13 per hundredweight was continued in the second quarter as a result of the quarterly review.

The support price of $8 13 was 80 per cent of parity on April 1 and July 1, and the increase to $8.26 will assure that the support price for milk will reflect recent changes in the costs of feed, equipment, wages, energy, and other farm costs. The Secretary noted that the increase was necessary to protect the productive capacity of our nation's dairy farmers, many of whom will have greater than normal costs of production this winter because they have been forced to feed their hay supply as a substitute for pasture during this year's drought.

The Secretary stated that the higher support will have only minimal effect on retail prices of milk and dairy products because prices of most dairy products are already above the new support level.

The price Commodity Credit Corporation will pay for butter will increase five cents and the price for Cheddar cheese will increase two cents in order to carry out the new level of support for milk. The purchase price for nonfat dry milk will not be changed.

The purchase prices of butter and Cheddar cheese reflect the increase in the support level as well as an allowance to reflect increases in the manufacturing costs of all dairy products. Although the purchase price for nonfat dry milk was not changed, the increase in the purchase price of butter will defray the increased cost in the butter-nonfat dry milk operation resulting from improved packaging for nonfat dry milk which may result from new packaging specifications being developed.

Cowtown Rodeo buckles awarded

WOODSTOWN, N J. - The 1976 high point cowtown rodeo buckles were awarded last Saturday night at the Cowtown Rodeo The point system has been adopted for use at the rodeo this year.

In the girl's barrel race, Lorraine Alexander and Dale Bibbo, who were leading during the first half of the season, lost the buckle to Joann Trost of Lebanon, Pa Joann placed second at the season's final rodeo, earning 30 more points to put her in the winning position with 475 points.

The outcome of Saturday's rodeo also determined the winners in the saddle bronc and steer wrestling events.

Kaye Kirby tied first place with R. L. Tolbert in the saddle bronc event giving both he and Grant Harris 380 points for the season and tieing them for the buckle

Kaye Kirby is a Woodstown, N.J , cowboy and was among the 15 finalists in 1976 at the National Finals Rodeo. He is still among the top finalists for 1976. He took the all-around cowboy's buckle with a total of 1,581 points, the bare back buckle with 660 points and the bull rider's buckle with 526 points, plus the tie for the saddle bronc.

Willie Ed Walker of Woodstown, N.J., just started his steer wrestling career this year, and with luck and a great deal of ability, won the steer wrestler's buckle with 279 points Sherman Shidner of Sharptown, N.J. was pushing a very close second.

The calf roping buckle was won by Bud Bramwell of Norwalk, Conn., with 294 points.

The engraved silver buckles were sponsored by local businessmen. Debora Zane of Zane's Western Wear, presented the saddle bronc buckle to Kaye Kirby and Grant Harris.

Cowtown cowboy outfitters sponsored the bare back buckle presented to Kaye Kirby by Earnest Bickford.

George Schneider of the Crystal Ice Co., presented Joann Trost with a 25 pound cake of ice. The silver buckle surrounded by red roses was frozen inside.

Mary Tanyer, proprietor of the Cowtown Steak House, presented the steer wrestler's buckle to Willie Ed Walker.

The calf roper's buckle was sponsored by Richman's Ice Cream Co. and Bud Bramwell accepted it from Bill Holmes.

The all-around cowboy's buckle was presented to Kaye Kirby by the originator of the Cowtown Rodeo, Stoney Harris. The buckle was sponsored by Cowtown Auctioneer's and Grandpa's Farm.

Clarence Flitcraft, owner of the Cream Valley Dairy, presented the bull riding buckle. Kaye Kirby accepted his fourth buckle in one evening.

The rodeo was held for the benefit of the South Jersey Council for the Boy Scouts of America.

Top driver named

EPHRATA — When FFA students from eight schools gathered here for a tractor driving contest last week to test their skills, it was Larry Hershey of Manheim who came out on top of the heap. Held here during the Ephrata Fair, the contest represented seven boys from Lancaster County schools and one from Chester County.

Hershey, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hershey, scored a first in the maintenance test, a third in the written exam, and first overall. There were four parts to the "driving contest" - written exam, trouble shooting, maintenance, and actual driving.

Following Hershey in the final standings were: Joe Hoover of the Grassland Chapter, Jay Shertzer, Penn Manor; Steve Koser, Pequea Valley; and Kevin Smoker, Cloister. The top three in each category were as follows: Written test — 1. Jay Shertzer, 2. Joe Hoover, 3. Larry Hershey. Trouble shooting — 1. 1. Jay Shertzer, 2. Joe Hoover, 3. Steve Koser. Maintenance test - 1. Larry Hershey, 2. Kevin Smoker, 3. Steve Koser. Driving - 1. Kevin Smoker, 2. Steve Koser, 3. Joe Hoover.

Cumberland Co. 4-H leaders' service honored

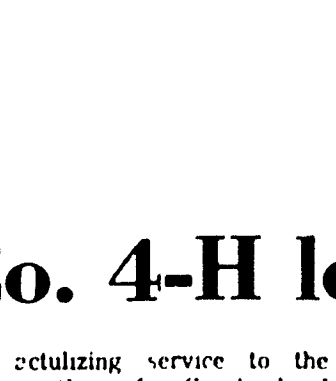
CARLISLE, Pa - Cumberland County 4-H leaders were recognized for their service at a pork roast in the Second Presbyterian Church, Carlisle, earlier this month Those recognized were. Mrs C C Leidigh, Carlisle R2, for 25 years of service, Merle E Miller, Carlisle R9, and Mrs Leroy Jones, Newville R1 for 20 years; Mrs. Everett Warner and Mrs. John Ocker II for 15 years; Mrs. Arthur Sheaffer, Mrs. George Heberlig, Barbara Rebert, and William Leib for 10 years

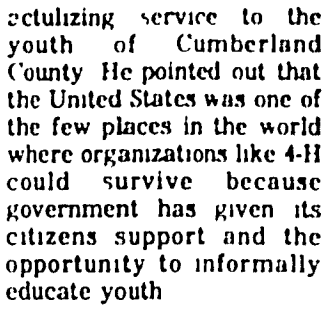
Fourteen 4-H leaders were recognized for five years of service. They were: Mrs Creedin Cornman, Catherine Yorlets, Jane Pooler, Mrs Kenneth Wolfe, Mrs. Francis Oiler, Nancy Swarner, Robert Holtry, Creedin Cornman, Mark Naugle, John Ocker III, Paul Cornman, C. Richard Kutz, Mike Berkheimer, and Earl Swarner.

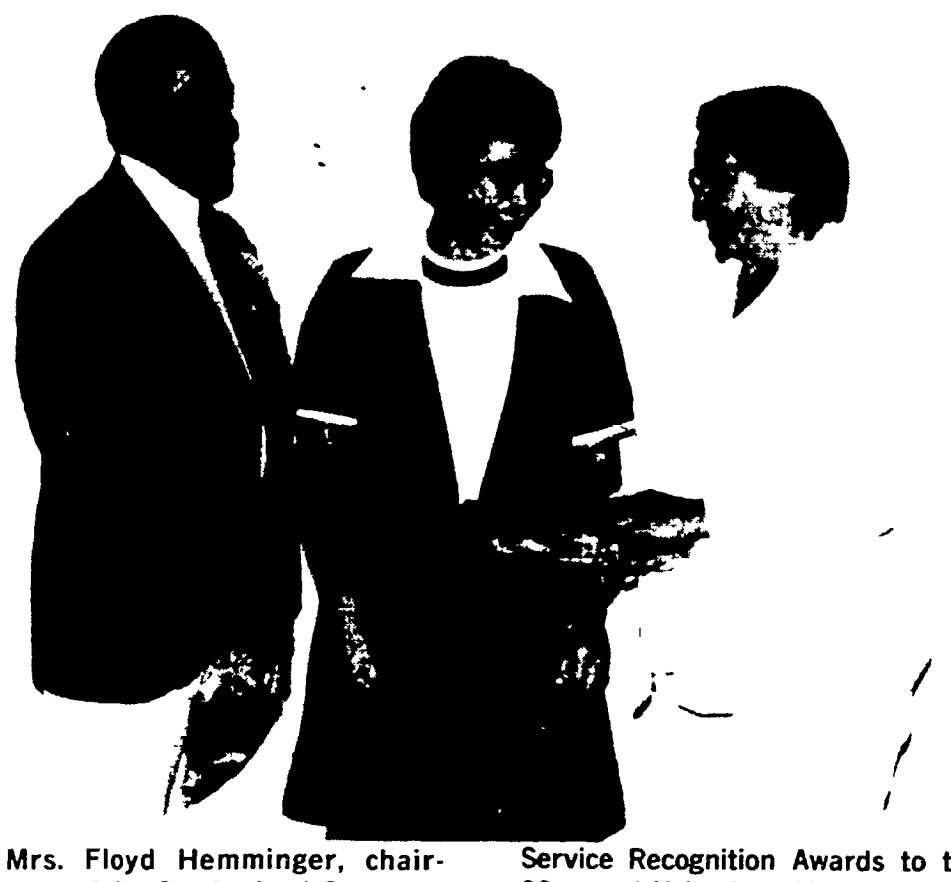
First year leaders were: Janet Jamison, Debbie Hemminger, Jeanette Magnotta, Mrs. Edgar Hoover, Linda Nickey, Karl Marchut, Beverly Marchut, Eileen Hosfelt, Janet Horn, Fred Deitch, Carol Burruss, Bob Jones, Suzanne Heinley, Patsy Corica, Shirley Wright, Kathy Copenhaver, Don Warner, David Mains, Martha Jones, Sara Swartz, Terri Davis, Brenda Johnson, Bettye Wright, Mrs Louis Rodgers, Rosella Walton, Sam Adderson, Carole Ramsey, Thomas Davis, Carol Bell, and Bobby Baltimore

Mr. and Mrs Richard Kutz prepared the meal by roasting a 150 pound pig which had been stuffed with bread stuffing County 4-H council members and parents helped with the serving. The evening's program included presentations by State 4-H competition medalists Pattie Ocker presented a demonstration on dairy cattle management and hygene titled, "Don't Let The Dam Break". Three 4-H'ers, Sheree Mains, Wendy Mains, and Greg Williams, presented a skit dramatizing the potential dangers of buying items from door-to-door salesmen. The skit was titled "The Door-To-Door Rip-Off".

Alan Wentz, 4-H agent, spoke to the leaders, thanking them for their self-actulizing service to the youth of Cumberland County He pointed out that the United States was one of the few places in the world where organizations like 4-H could survive because government has given its citizens support and the opportunity to informally educate youth







Mrs. Floyd Hemminger, chairperson of the Cumberland County 4-H RDE Committee presents 4-H Service Recognition Awards to two 20-year 4-H leaders, Merle E. Miller and Mrs. Leroy Jones.

Mrs. C. C. Leidigh receives the 4-H Service Recognition Award for 25 years of service from Mrs. Floyd Hemminger, chairperson of the Cumberland County 4-H RDE Committee.

PURINA BIO-4 POULTRY CHOWS

THE NEW SCIENTIFIC FEEDING PROGRAM FOR EGG PRODUCERS AND PULLET GROWERS.

PURINA CHOWS

WHAT IS BIO-4

Bio-4 Poultry Chows are feeds which utilize newly developed values for four critical nutrient areas: No. 1 - Amino Acids, No. 2 - Energy, No. 3 - Minerals, No. 4 - Vitamins. New biological feed values were developed after seven years of research test feeding.

HOW TO FEED

BIO-4 SAVES FEED COSTS — YOU FEED ONLY WHAT YOUR BIRDS NEED.

FEED INTAKE lbs./100 hens/day	BIO-4 CHOW TO FEED
OVER 25.0	Bio-100
23.4 TO 25.0	Bio-107
21.7 TO 23.3	Bio-114
20.0 TO 21.6	Bio-121
UNDER 20.0	Bio-128

Starting with Bio-100, each Bio Chow contains 7% more fortification.

MORE PROFIT $$$

Bio-4 Poultry Chows mean more profit for you!! A key economic effect of Bio-4 Chow is an improvement in feed conversion. This improvement is a result of Bio-4's higher nutrient density. Based on Purina Research, you should see a decrease in feed intake of 0.1 lb. per dozen eggs. The value of this decrease for a 40,000 bird house exceeds $5000 per cycle.
